Powers Family Seeks Clemency

Wife Staying To Await Outcome Of Plea To Soviet President

MOSCOW (AP) — The family of Francis Gary Powers will appeal to President Leonid Brezhnev to reduce the U2 pilot's 10 year sentence for espionage. But he does not feel anything they can do will help him.

This was disclosed Saturday by the pilot's pretty, brunette wife, Barbara, who vowed to stay in the Soviet capital until she has done everything possible to help her husband.

"Ten years is a very long time," she told reporters, placing her hand on her throat and slowly shaking her head.

Three Virginia lawyers, who act as legal advisers to the Powers family, conferred with Mikhail I. Grinlov, assigned by the Soviet government to defend Powers.

It was Grinlov who suggested that the best thing to do now is for the wife, mother, father and sister to make an informal plea by note to the Soviet President for clemency.

Barbara told a news conference this is "what we plan to do, and we will await the outcome."

Asked if she intended to press an attempt to see Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Barbara said: "We will await what the appeal to the Presidium (headed by Brezhnev) produces before trying to see Khrushchev. We are taking Grinlov's advice on this."

"I just could not leave Moscow without knowing I've done everything possible," she added tremolously.

Barbara met the press with her mother, Mrs. Monteen Brown of Milledgeville, Ga., in the living room of her Sovietskaya Hotel suite.

"There were hardly any words," she said of her meeting with her husband. "As Gary walked into the room he stretched out his arms. He was crying. He came right over to his mother (Mrs. Oliver W. Powers) and me."

"He looked very good, except that he has lost quite a bit of weight. He was very, very nervous."

She said the thing that seemed to worry her husband most was the attack on the United States during his trial.

"He said he had no idea what his defense attorney would say at this trial and he felt very badly that because of the blasting of the United States he received a lighter sentence—he felt very badly about

Americans Paid $100 Billion In Taxes In 1959

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans paid a record total of 100 billion dollars in taxes to Federal, state and local governments in 1959, the Census Bureau said Saturday.

The payments, which compared with $98,400,000,000 a year earlier, were made during the fiscal years which ended at different times during 1959, varying with the government concerned.

On a per person basis, taxes totaled $567.04. This was less than the 1958 level of $567.86 because the population grew a bit faster than tax collections.

The record for collections per person—$579.19—was recorded in 1957.

Federal tax collections per person during fiscal 1959 amounted to $381.35. State and local governments collected $185.69.

The biggest revenue producer was, as usual, the federal income tax. It brought in $208.20 per person. At the state and local level, the biggest taxes were property levies, $87.03 per person; sales taxes, $59.18; and income taxes, $11.31.

U.N. Meets Today On Congo Crisis; Soviet Attacks Dag

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Congo crisis deepened Saturday night with new Soviet attacks on Secdeepened Saturday night with new Soviet attacks on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold while U.N. Security Council members prepared for an emergency Sunday session.

In rapid succession, Vasily Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, demanded Hammarskjold withdraw Canadian units of the U.N. force and attacked his civilian aid program for the Congo as putting the African nation under the thumb of the United States and so-called colonial powers. He objected to Canadians as being allies of Belgium whom he classed as aggressors in the Congo.

The U. N. replaced Ralph Bunche, American Negro undersecretary of the U.N., as Hammarskjold's personal representative in the Congo by Rajeshwar Dayal, veteran Indian diplomat. Dayal served on a U.N. commission in the Lebanon crisis in 1958 and now is India's high commissioner to Pakistan. Bunche has been snubbed by Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba in recent days in Leopoldville.

Leaders of African delegates to the United Nations huddled with Congo Deputy Premier Antoine Gizenga and others in a group sent by Lumumba to the Security Council session. It was reported that the Africans here are trying to cool off the Congolese group's hostility. Many of their governments at home have indicated displeasure with Lumumba's attacks on Hammarskjold.

Hammarskjold made public a message exchange with Ghana's Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah. It revealed a sharp split between Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn, a Swede who is supreme commander of the U.N. force, and Maj. Gen. H. T. Alexander, a Briton who commands Ghana units in the force. Alexander complained that a weak U.N. Command is unable to issue orders to put down armed Congolese guards attacking U. N. personnel.

From Leopoldville came word that the opposition Abako party warned it intends to rid the country of Lumumba "by legal or illegal means." A first attempt will be made to vote him out of office when the Congolese Parliament meets in 10 days, his foes announced.

New rioting was reported in Leopoldville, the Congo capital. It was reported the key Congo River port of Matadi was closed after 15 Belgian paratroopers in civilian clothes were allegedly found aboard one ship.

Coupled with Kuznetsov's demands for the Canadian troop withdrawal and his attack on the civilian aid program was his renewed hint of military help for Lumumba in the Congolese Premier's attempt to conquer rebel-

Study Recordings, Instruments From Explorer Capsule

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP) — The capsule of Discoverer XIV, snatched out of the skies near Hawaii Friday, will be studied at the Lockheed laboratories here and not be flown to Washington.

The capsule arrived Saturday aboard an Air Force C130 from Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii. This was only 11 hours after the crew of a C119 Flying Boxcar achieved a historical first by snatching the parachuting capsule at 8,500 feet, 390 miles southwest of Hawaii.

Instruments will be removed and their recordings evaluated by scientists at Lockheed's space and missile division at Sunnyvale. Lockheed builds the Agena orbiting vehicle used to put Discoverer aloft.

Discoverer XIV was launched at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., Thursday and its 17th trip around the earth it ejected the capsule over Alaska.

The Air Force happily called the recovery another step toward the solution of the problem of bringing man back to earth alive and well after outer space travel.

Farm Problems Or Votes?

Kennedy, Truman Make Peace, Nixon Lashes Communism

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrats and Republicans Saturday stepped up rival drives for farm votes. John F. Kennedy sealed a peace pact with Harry S. Truman. And Richard M. Nixon pronounced communism a failure.

Those were the political headlines this August weekend with the November election 10 weeks away.

At this point in the campaign, chief aides of Vice President Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, and Sen. Kennedy, the Democratic contender for the White House, agreed that the contest is a neck-and-neck affair.

Both sides said there is a large number of uncommitted voters whose decision could name the winner.

Kennedy, journeying from Washington to Truman's home town of Independence, Mo., got Truman's pledge to hit the campaign trail for the Democratic ticket.

Nixon, spending the weekend in Washington, issued the first in a series of papers outlining his views "in depth." This one, running some 6,000 words, dissected communism as a poltiical system. Nixon's verdict: It's a failure in dealing with economics, justice, morality and self-government.

Both parties were active in planting seeds they hoped will flourish into a harvest of farm votes.

Democrats attending a party farm rally at Des Moines, Iowa, claimed a farm belt victory for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket. Kennedy and his running mate, Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, are to address the rally Sunday.

In Washington, House Republicans outlined an emergency farm program they said they will introduce Monday. It calls for increasing sales prices of government-held farm surpluses and for increasing retirement of land from production. They said present low surplus price tags depress farm prices.

Kennedy's headquarters announced a new "Farmers for Kennedy-Johnson Committee" with Iowa Gov. Herschel C. Loveless in charge, aided by such figures as former Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard and former Georgia Rep. Stephen Pace. This group is to operate "from farm-gate to farm-gate" seeking votes.

Red Propoganda Trial Failed To Impress Western Europe

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe summed up the Powers' trial as a propaganda show piece that failed to impress the nations of Western Europe.

The verdict never was in doubt. The sentence generally was regarded as lenient.

Throughout the Continent there was sympathy for the accused U2 pilot, Francis Gary Powers, his wife and parents. They were seen as an ordinary family caught up in the clash between the world's two biggest powers.

But there was little sympathy with the Soviet bid to put U. S. policy in the dock alongside Powers.

Britain's Daily Telegraph commented:

"Powers was sent over Russia because America needs to know what is going on there and could not find out in other ways.

"The more the prosecutor sought to materialize President Eisenhower in the dock at Powers' right hand, the darker grew the shadow of Mr. Khrushchev on his left."

In Denmark, Copenhagen's Berlingske Tidende said the rail aim of the trial was to establish the United States as the culprit.

"But it is doubtful whether the big show in Moscow will alter the world's judgment of the U. S. and the U.S.S.R.," the conservative newspaper asserted.

In Rome, the independent Il Messaggere said:

"The scope of the trial was to place accent upon the 'criminal American espionage organization.'"

But Il Messaggere added that a study of prosecutor Rudenko's final statement reveals "statements so strange, falsehoods so evident and distortions of truth so artificial as to confirm once again that with the Soviets it is impossible to have discussions and dealings on the ordinary level of good faith."

Neutral Sweden was equally unimpressed by the prosecution's denunciation of U. S. policy, but otherwise the Swedes found the Soviet handling of the case "a satisfying surprise."

The Stockholm Tidningen speculated that when a new U. S. president takes office, Powers should stand a good chance of a pardon.

Other European newspapers also suggested Powers may not have to serve his full 10 year sentence. The Paris newspaper Figaro said he might be expelled from the Soviet Union after three years in jail.

WIDOW SWINDLED OUT OF $22,100

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 78-year-old widow told police Saturday three men swindled her out of $22,100 savings.

Mrs. Margaret Fey claimed the men induced her to cash savings certificates and turn the money over to them, promising her to deposit it in one bank for her convenience.

She told police the men came to her home several weeks ago and advised her the house needed repairs. She said she paid them $1,090 in cash, which has been set aside for her husband's funeral. Fey died last June.

Then, she told police, one of the men suggested that she remove her savings certificates from a safe deposit box. She did so, she said, cashing $9,000 worth on Aug. 10, $5,000 on Aug. 11, $5,100 on Aug. 12 and $3,000 last Thursday.

Soviets Recover Space Ship, Dogs

Claim Animals Alive, Healthy After Circling Earth 18 Times

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said Saturday its dog-carrying space ship has been returned to earth with its live cargo safe.

The Soviets triumphantly announced the historical first of orbiting living creatures into space and returning them alive. They heralded the feat as the forerunner of man's flight into space.

The Soviet News Agency Tass said the two dogs that rode the space capsule are healthy after their 24-hour flight 437,500 miles around the earth. They are undergoing medical examination.

The dogs, named Arrow and Squirrel and about the size of large fox terriers, were whizzed around the globe at a height of 198.8 miles at a rate of 227 miles a minute. They circled the earth 18 times before they were landed at a predetermined spot, Tass said.

While the United States has recovered vehicles from outer space, it has not returned a living being from orbit beyond the earth's atmosphere.

The Soviets said they brought back to earth both the space ship and "the capsule with the experimental animals detached from the ship."

Radio Moscow said in addition to the two dogs, the 4½-ton space ship carried several rats and mice, flies, plants, fungi, microscopic water plants and some seeds. It also carried television cameras to observe the dogs' behavior and a raft of scientific instruments.

It was launched Friday just in time for the feat to be announced at the height of excitement over the trial of the American U2 plane pilot, Francis Gary Powers.

The announcement did not say where the landing point was. It said that planes and helicopters delivered medicine for the dogs. It said scientists are now checking all the animals which underwent the space flight.

Tass said the deviation from the calculated point of landing was less than seven miles. Earlier Saturday it was announced that the flying menagerie had completed its 16th revolution at 10:30 a.m.

The first Soviet satellite was launched in October 1957. Soon afterwards the Soviets rocketed the dog Laika out of the atmosphere but that dog died in orbit.

The Soveit Union has given this account of the so-called space menagerie: The two dogs were

Demos Claiming Farm Belt Win For Kennedy

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Democrats claimed to foresee a farm belt victory for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket at a party farm rally Saturday.

The rally, they said, grew largely out of producers' demands to be heard on their woes.

Farmers and their leaders from 14 states lined up to tell a panel of party officials about rural conditions, which most described as being economically depressed. Most of them urged bolder federal efforts to improve farm income.

This demonstration came a day ahead of the appearance of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the party's presidential nominee, and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, his running mate.

They will give their first major talks on the farm issue here Sunday afternoon. Kennedy has said the farm issue is the major domestic one of the campaign.

A terse summary of the views expressed Saturday will be given Kennedy when he and Johnson attend a "work conference" of party officials Sunday afternoon.

In a brief news conference at the end of the hearings, Loveless said most of the farmers appearing felt "the farm factory needs to be slowed down" to bring production into balance with demand.

There was a diversity of opinion, however, on how this can be accomplished, he said.

Marines Plot VIP Treatment For Peoria Factory Foreman

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — "I'll go along with a gag—and it looks like I'm going a long way," says Melvin Miller, 40, genial tractor factory foreman.

He thought a minute. "Those take-charge characters! Well, I just have to meet them."

Miller chuckled yesterday about an all-expense one-week California vacation arranged for him by a group of Marines of Camp Pendleton and El Toro Marine Air Base.

Miller's life with his wife, Sally, and their three children—Bob, 10, Don, 9, and Judy, 7—was moderately predictable until last Labor Day.

That's when Marine Capt. Joe Gestson of Camp Pendleton picked up a telephone at a bar in Laguna Beach, Calif., to call a friend.

Gestson's finger dialed into the long-lines system and by some quirk spun out Miller's Peoria phone number instead of a buddy he was trying to reach in California.

"I was out in my front yard painting when I heard the phone," Miller said. "Some guy wanted to know if I knew where his car was."

"It sounded like somebody I knew, so I tried to help him out. Things were a little complicated, though. Seemed like he thought he was in California.

"He called me back later to tell me he had found his car all right."

Miller said Gestson phoned several times thereafter. Sometimes he put a fellow Marine on the line for a few words, sometimes he talked to Mrs. Miller. The Millers thought their callers were idling in some Peoria oasis.

Gestson sent post cards from Laguna Beach to prove his whereabouts. Then, as Christmas approached, he handed out Christmas cards to airmen and sailors who were shipping out, making sure they were addressed to the Millers. So, the Millers got a shower of Yule greetings from various corners of the globe.

The Mel Miller legend grew in Laguna Beach, and a movement was launched by Gestson and bartender Grant Maxwell to bring Miller to California.

3 Contrasting Plans For Care For Aged Offered To Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three sharply contrasting proposals for helping the nation's 16 million senior citizens pay medical and health care costs were offered in the Senate Saturday.

One proposal reportedly carried the backing of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican presidential candidate.

With more than half the 100 senators absent and an agreement on to do no voting, the start of what may be one of the session's hardest fought battles proved relatively mild.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) first offered what he called "a realistic and workable plan" to help millions of aged persons "who are unable to pay their medical bills when illness occurs or continues."

He outlined details of the bill approved 12-4 by the Senate Finance Committee of which he is chairman.

It proposes federal grants to the states to help expand or develop old age assistance programs to meet medical costs.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) then unveiled a proposal of federal aid for helping the aged buy medical and health insurance which, he said, has the backing of Vice President Nixon.

Javits said his proposal was an expansion and liberalization of an earlier plan by the Eisenhower administration. He offered it as an addition to the committee-approved bill.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM) outlined the third proposal —also offered as a supplement to the committee bill — calling for expansion of the present social security insurance program to help persons over 66 meet medical costs.

Anderson's proposal already is assured the support of Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, his running mate, Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, and a large number of other Democrtaic sentaors.

It runs counter to the administration's opposition to linking medical care costs—which could grow to billions of dollars annually—into the contributory social security system now 25 years old.

Byrd noted that the finance committee bill would expand present medical aid programs in the states for an estimated 2,400,000 persons now receiving old age assistance.

He said it would be limited to individuals with income of not over $3,000 a year or married couples with an income of $4,500 or less.

Estimate Nixon, Kennedy Running Neck-And-Neck

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats agreed with Republicans Saturday the presidential contest between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy is a neck-and-neck affair.

Although they had different views on almost every other subject, Democratic National Chairman Henry M. Jackson and Robert Finch, campaign director for Nixon, said they are convinced the number of undecided voters is much larger than national polls show.

Finch said the indications in one poll that only six per cent of the voters remain undecided "don't square with the polls we have taken."

"We think the undecided vote is much greater than six per cent," he said.

He added that he doesn't believe Nixon is running as well now as the public polls seem to show.

Jackson said in a separate interview he agrees the uncommitted vote is larger than it has been represented.

"I feel that the poll which showed Nixon was ahead is a good thing for us because it will stir up the Democrats," he said. "But I do not believe Nixon is many points ahead, and it would be unusual if only six per cent of the voters were undecided this long before the election."

Backing up Finch's estimates, Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, said the Republicans are not lulled by the idea they are ahead.

"We think things have gone well for us since the nomination," he said. "But we don't think the battle is won, and we are proceeding with all stops pulled out."

With The Girl Scouts

Girl Scouts never stop enjoying outdoor activities and camping! On Tuesday, August 23, there will be an all-day and overnight camping session at Camp Shagbark on Lake Jacksonville for those girls who missed overnight camping in June because of inclement weather at that time.

Fran Chumley, camp director, will be in charge of the day's session which will begin at 9:30 a.m. and last until after breakfast the following morning.

Participating in this camping venture will be Intermediate Girl Scouts from Meredosia, from Virginia and from Troop No. 63 and Troop No. 33 in Jacksonville.

Menus for the days will include: for lunch, haystacks, tossed salad and Rice Krispie cookies; for supper, broiled chicken, baked potatoes, candle salad and rolls; and for breakfast Wednesday morning, fruit juice, scrambled eggs, bacon and toast.

The girls will prepare their own food over a campfire under the supervision of their leaders. On Tuesday evening, the entire group will assemble around a campfire for songs, games and refreshments of "some-mores," a confection made of toasted marshmallows and chocolate bars between graham crackers.

Assisting Mrs. Chumley will be Miss Jean Kant and Miss Suzanne Hartman as junior counsellors.

Pottery Pick-Up

Here's a reminder to all girls who made pottery at camp this past summer—your work of art has been glazed and processed at the White Hall pottery kiln and is now ready for you to pick up at the Girl Scout Office on North East street. Be sure to call for your creation soon or we may find a use for it in the office!

Brownie Troop No. 32 of Lincoln school enjoyed a picnic and swimming party last week at Nichols Park. This group, too, did not drop its activties during the summer months, but is keeping up the girls' interest so that when school starts they can just continue plans already started.

Each girl brought a sack lunch. Drinks and Girl Scout cookies were provided by troop funds. The swim was also paid for with troop money earned from selling cookies. This troop sold 108 boxes of cookies after the close of the official sale, selling that many from the surplus order which was left. This was over and above the original allotment of cookies the troop sold during the time of the regular sale.

Of the 23 Brownies in the troop, 14 attended the picnic and swim. Mrs. Betty Farmer is the troop leader and she was assisted at the picnic by Mrs. A. E. Lindburg.

Girl Scout rallies will be held this fall in each community, so watch for announcements of a rally for your troop soon!

Democracy, Communism Or Socialism— Indonesia Stands At The Crossroads

JAKARTA (AP)—"Indonesia is like the United States in the 18th century, over-sensitive, over-proud, full of plans, going every which way."

The Indonesian official smiled gently, relishing the parallel he had drawn. "Every which way," he repeated.

The question is: Which way? Toward the Communist East? The non-Communist West? Toward democracy or authoritarianism? Toward absolute socialism, with the government owning and operating every enterprise? Or some modified version of it?

These are immensely vital questions, not only in Southeast Asia, but in the whole context of the struggle today between Communist and non-Communist.

For Indonesia is the world's sixth largest nation. The population is crowding 90 million. It fairly drips with wealth in oil, rubber, minerals, the basis for tremendous food-production. After 300 years as a colony of Holland, it now has the potentiality of becoming one of the world's major powers.

Which way will it go?

At first sight, the answer would have to be "toward the Communist pattern." Its government is a "guided democracy."

What that means depends pretty much on what one man—the brilliant, unpredictable, vastly popular master-politician, President Sukarno—wants it to mean. There is a hand-picked Parliament but it doesn't fix policy or make the decisions.

"I am no Communist," Sukarno has said, "but I am open-minded." He recently told a group of younger Indonesians, "Don't be afraid of being leftist."

Another comment on "guided democracy" came from Gen Abdul Haris Nasution, commander of the Indonesian army, a highly trained, highly capable officer.

He said in a speech: "I am not against democracy but I deeply abhor indecent acts under the mask of democracy."

There have been a number of rebellions in various islands of the vast archipelago. Consequently, "security regulations" give the country today the malodorous character of a police state.

If a citizen wishes to make a weekend trip, he must notify the policie. If he changes his mind and doesn't go away, he must report. If he has a house guest, he must fill out forms and send them to the police station with two photographs. If he decides to have two tables of bridge in his home, it's wise to notify the police in advance. More than six persons under one roof is considered a meeting.

Economically, Indonesia already is Socialist.

The major industries are nationalized. Foreign-owned petroleum companies still operate, but one of Sukarno's chief aides said "in the long run, oil also will have to be nationalized."

But "Indonesian socialism," the leaders say, is not Soviet or Chinese socialism. They say it is closer to Marshal Tito's brand.

When you try to discover specific meanings, however, the usual answer is "only Sukarno knows."

In comparing Indonesian socialism with other versions, a top official said this: "The Russians are too materialistic."

Indonesian officials frequently emphasize the importance of "human feelings" in every sphere of endeavor. They seem to have a conception, totally different from that of the Soviets and Chinese, of the relation between the individual and state.

An even greater difference, one top official said, lies in this: "Our belief in God. We are a religious people."

So, as you discover more of the many facets of the picture in Indonesia, the impression that his nation is an embryonic Red China or Soviet Union begins to soften.

Some powerful factors are dragging in the other direction.

Two may be negative, but nonetheless important:

1. The swelling power of Red China and the aggressiveness of its government.

"China's power can be a danger to Southeast Asia," one official said.

2. A growing awareness of the role of a Communist party in any country.

The Indonesian Communist are probably the strongest and certainly best-organized of any party. They claim a membership of two million. Even their opponents concede that the party structure reaches down to the lowest levels in the villages.

CENSUS MISHAP

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP)—Most census takers go out looking for other people. But with Mrs. Tom Sneedon it was just the other way around.

While counting noses in a remote area about 38 miles east of here, her car got stuck in a mud hole.

She spent the night in the car before a posse of sheriff's officers, highway patrolmen and game wardens found her next day.

Xmas Seal Designs Will Be Displayed

The designer of the 1962 Christmas Seal may well be from Morgan county, or the surrounding area.

Any persons from this area who have drawn a design according to scale as described in the material supplied in the spring by the Morgan County Tuberculosis Association's secretary, Mrs. Verne Anderson, are welcome to display their entry or entries at the Strawn Art Gallery on the lawn on Sunday, Aug. 28, from the hours 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. in conjunction with other work to be shown that day by persons belonging to the Jacksonville Area Artists League, and also work of guest artists. Anyone who has creative talent or a flair for art is eligible to participate in this event which is annual.

Along with the showing of seal designs, four designs have been submitted by students from the Illinois School for the Deaf and will go on display. These students were guided by Miss Edith Jordan. Each year designs must be sent by the first week in October to Christmas Seal Sale Division, National Tuberculosis Association, 1790 Broadway, New York 19, N. Y. and a committee composed of tuberculosis workers representative of the country as a whole will judge the seal to be used two years hence. Because of the time involved in setting up production, the committee selects a design which will be used two years later since the design is reproduced billions of times.

The artist and his career are publicized by all the tuberculosis associations. Hundreds of newspapers in large cities and small towns carry news stories about the Christmas Seal, and its designer. It would be impossible to estimate the value of this publicity and prestige to the artist as releases are sent to publications in the graphic arts and advertising field, as well as to philatelic magazines and syndicated stamp coumns. And, of course, publications in areas where the artist lives or has lived and worked receive publicity material. A cash award of $500 is given to the creator of the design chosen.

Rules governing the size of the design may be secured from Mrs. Verne Anderson as the design is drawn to scale, must have the registered trademark of the National Tuberculosis Association incorporated in the design in red in accordance with standard specifications; should be appropriate to the season with no use of the word "tuberculosis" but the year must be included in the design and all designs must be submitted in four colors which are traditionally associated with the Christmas season. Pamphlets telling of the rules and complete guidance of artists or anyone wishing to submit designs may be obtained from Mrs. Anderson, 511 West Beecher avenue, Jacksonville.

Any persons wishing to display their designs before sending them to New York for final judging will please have them at the Strawn Art Gallery on West College avenue before 10 a.m., Aug. 28.

Job Insurance Facts Received At Local Office

Carl Martin, manager of the Jacksonville office of the Illinois Division of Unemployment Compensation, has received a number of facts and figures concerning Social Security, which is now 25 years old, and Unemployment Insurance.

On Aug. 28, 1935 the Congress of the United States enacted Titles III and IX of the Social Security Act providing for a Federal-State system of Unemployment Insurance.

Illinois passed its Unemployment Compensation Act on June 30, 1957 and the next day the Division of Unemployment Compensation went into operation. Some 40,000 employers of 1,604,200 workers became subject to the Act. In 1940 the requirement of coverage for 8 or more workers was modified to 6, and in 1956 again reduced to 4. Today, more than 87,000 Illinois employers carry job insurance on some 2,686,000 workers.

In its first year of benefit payments, the Division paid $16,797,058 in Unemployment benefits. For the 12 months ended June 30, 1960, benefit payments were $115,500,000 and since July 1, 1939 to June 30, 1960 a grand total of 1½ billion dollars was paid to unemployed workers.

PERILS OF BREVITY

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Ted Carpenter of Marquette University tells of two Roman Catholic nuns who were traveling to Milwaukee by train and were delighted when the dining-car menu offered "Old Fashioned New England Boiled Dinner."

Ordering for the sisters, one of them wrote on the menu card, "Two Old Fashioneds."

And that's exactly what the waiter brought in two glasses.

THEY DIDN'T GET AWAY!

James Dyche, a former Jacksonville young man now residing at Reno, Nevada, is pretty well satisfied with resultings of a fishing trip he took off Hawaii, where he and his family enjoyed a vacation. He is shown with two blue marlin that would gladden the heart of any angler.

One of the big fish weighed 490 pounds, putting up a 30 minute battle. The other weighed 168 pounds—landing time 25 minutes. Both were landed off Kona, Hawaii.

Mr. Dyche, a grandson of Mrs. Frank Hagan, 502 South Church street, had a narrow escape in an automobile accident two weeks ago. The car collided with several mail boxes and trees when a front tire suddenly blew out. Dyche escaped without a scratch, although his automobile was completely demolished.

Former Jacksonville Man Charted Orbit Of Echo Satellite

When Mr. and Mrs. Otis B. VanWinkle, 1304 South East street, scan the night sky and spot the Echo Satellite as it moves swiftly through space, they experience a feeling of extreme personal pride. For their son, Donald D. VanWinkle, helped chart the course of the huge satellite which is making scientific history in the field of communication.

VanWinkle, who delivered Jacksonville Couriers some years before he dreamed of taking part in planning an object in the sky which would be seen around the world, is an employe of Douglas Aircraft at Santa Monica, Calif. He formulated the trajectory of the orbit in which the satellite travels.

"I am pretty elated about the whole thing," he said in a letter to his parents.

Mr. VanWinkle attended the Jacksonville schools and carried a Courier route from 1948 to 1958 to 1951. After graduating from Belleville Junior College he attended the University of Illinois, where he graduated from a scientific course. Later he was employed by the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis.

The Echo satellite now in orbit is one of a series on which Mr. VanWinkle has been working. "There are many, many others working on the project, so I'm not the only one feeling happy about the results of the Echo," Mr. VanWinkle told his parents.

Rickover Sees Russia's Real Threat To America In Educational Processes

Editor's Note—Vice Adm. Hyman Rickover, the father of the atomic submarine, has long been noted as a leading critic of U.S. educational trends. In the following article, he sums up his viewpoint and philosophy.

By VICE ADM. H.G. RICKOVER

WASHINGTON (AP) — We and we alone among all modern democracies have devalued our educational currency.

We have down-graded the high school diploma to a point where it does not even promise competence in elementary subjects. Witness the many college freshmen who have to take remedial courses in reading, writing and arithmetic. Abroad these courses are mastered in the first eight years of schooling.

Russia's real threat to us will come through their educational and not through their military processes. Military systems and techniques are transitory — they now change every few years. An intelligent and well-educated body of citizens is something you will have forever.

This is where the Russians are smarter than we. They have recognized the full value of a good education and they are hellbent on giving it to as many of their youngsters as they can coax into taking it.

This is about the best comparison I can make: Almost half of Russia's children, graduating at 17 after but 10 years of schooling, do as well — by the record — as many of our children after 14 years of schooling, two of them in college.

Neither I nor other crtiics have ever recommended that we take over the Russian educational system. We do urge that we consider Russian educational achievements as the minimum standard for our own educational objectives.

We warn it would be suicidal if we allowed scholastic levels in our schools permanently to drop below this minimum standard. We flatly reject the claim that since ours is mass education it must, therefore, be mediocre, or that democratic education can never be as good as education in an authoritarian state.

What I have said about Russia applies even more so to the Western European nations.

Abroad, a liberal education comparing favorably with what Americans acquire in 16 years of school and college takes from 12 to 13 much ahead of Americans when they begin to study for a "learned" profession, such as medicine or law.

I find it personally humiliating that most European universities demand a bachelor of arts degree of Americans wishing to matriculate, while they admit all Europeans with a "maturity" certificate which is obtained at the end of the higher secondary school. This school achieves these superior results through better teaching, better curriculum, much tougher classroom work and homework, and early separating of the talented child from the average.

We seem bemused by the claims of the educationists that it is "undemotcratic" for other Western nations to separate their children after elementary school, and to put them into different types of secondary schools according to their mental abilities and vocational aims.

We do not say it is "undemocratic" that nurses go to nursing school and doctors to medical school, and that each obtains a different diploma. Nor do we send enlisted personnel to the same schools as officers.

Why do we get angry at Europeans for weeding out the dullards from the talented children and sending them to separate secondary schools? What good would it do the dullards to be admitted to a school where they would just sit around and understand nothing?

It may be beguiling in theory to think of all our children going to school together. But will it really serve their best interests to send them to schools where the child with an IQ of 70 sits beside one with an IQ of 170, and where the morally weak child freely associates with the child who has been carefully raised to distinguish right from wrong and to conduct himself responsibly?

This makes no sense to me. Obviously, no child will receive an education best suited to his abilities and vocational aims in such a school; nor will the bright child develop admiration and respect for the dullard, or the potential young delinquent profit from associating with well-brought-up children.

It is far more likely that the dullard will be frustrated, the bright child bored, the average child never challenged mentally, the good child corrupted by the young ne'er-do-well, and everyone's manners and mores down graded to a dead level of mediocrity.

Improving our schools will be no easy matter. But the dollars you spend on education are the cheapest dollars you can spend, even if some of them are wasted. They are by far the cheapest dollars, and they give the graetest return.

There is much evidence, however, that the education dollars buys less really good schooling in the United States than in any other country in the world. I am sure we could make great improvements simply by spending more wisely and efficiently the funds we now have. But money alone won't do it. It will also require much thought and effort.

Adv Sun. Aug. 21

As an engineer would say the first thing we must do is set up specifications: what we want our high school graduates to know when they finish at the age of 18. The minute you do that, you put courses in etiquette and baton twirling in their proper place; you begin to see that perhaps you ought not to pay an athletic coach a higher salary than a teacher of trigonometry.

We allow ourselves to be frightened by arguments that setting national standards would mean federal tyranny over education. In view of our professed fear of the federal government, we could not at the present time set up compulsory national standards.

But there is nothing in our form of government to prevent Congress from setting up some sort of commission or council and giving it the task of working out different sets of educational goals for our public schools.

Isn't the honest labeling of educational diplomas as important as the honest labeling of drugs? We regulate what goes into people's mouths, why can't we even recommend what goes into their heads?

This would give an enormuos advantage to parents who are really interested in having their children "educated" in contrast to having them merely "trained."

The distinction between education and training is nto thoroughly understood. When you teach a boy how to operate a lathe you are training him, you are not educating him. Training does not develop the mind. Education is a process by which the mind is developed.

It is in education—that is, in transmitting the fundamentals of knowledge, in developing the ability to think—that we fall down. Too much of our so-called education is mere training in various kinds of know-how.

In the United States it is quite possible that, left to his own devices, a potentially talented child may squander his best learning years on easy know-how courses which require no homework but which earn him the same credit toward a high school diploma as academic subjects. But in Russia, since all children tackle academic subjects, anyone who shows promise in one or another area of knowledge will be discovered early.

GREENFIELD—The Greenfield Community Unit District No. 10 schools will open with a shortened school day on Aug. 30. On Aug. 15-16 there will be registration of all new enrollees as well as any necessary changes from spring registratoin. On Aug. 17-18 all elementary, junior high and senior high students should pay book rental and insurance fees. Kindergarten students will pay fees at the Greenfield elementary school.

According to Board policy all of the above charges are based on one-fourth the actual cost of textbooks plus the actual cost of workbooks and other materials used. There is a charge of $1.25 for Health and Accident insurance that all students are expected to pay. The insurance covers, according to schedule, the major cost of injuries that might occur while in school or while a participant in a school activity. This insurance does not cover any breakage of eyeglasses or injuries which occur while going to and from school. Other insurance carried by the district covers injuries that may be related to bus transportation. On Aug. 29, beginning at 8:30 the first unit faculty meeting of the year will be held in the senior high library. There will be additional preparation for school by faculty members in the afternoon of the first short day for the students.

On Thursday, Aug. 25, beginning at 1 p.m. the boys who are going out for football will take their physicals in the senior high gym. Also, during this afternoon Mr. Gustine, head football coach, and Mr. Azbell, first asistant, will size up the boys for uniforms and other equipment for the season. Beginning at 3:40 p.m. on Aug. 29 there will be the first football practice. This practice will probably be held on the grounds behind the Greenfield elementary school building.

On Aug. 30 school will convene at the junior-senior high school buildings at 8:35 a.m. This will include not only grades 7 through 12 but also kindergarten, the sixth grades, and the one fifth grade that meets in the junior high building. On Aug. 31 school will convene on regular schedule as follows: Opening, 8:35 a.m., junior-senior high building; closing, 3:40 p.m. junior-senior high building; opening 8:45 a.m., Greenfield elementary building; closing 3:30 p.m., Greenfield elementary biulding. Beginning with Aug. 31 through Sept. 2 school will convene on regular schedule as already shown. There will be no school on Sept. 5 because of Labor Day. School will again reconvene on Sept. 6 on regular schedule.

Furnace Now Being Installed

The Board of Education of Greenfield Community Unit District found it necessary to install a complete new furnace in the senior high school building. For several years the boiler inspector from the Department of Public Safety has warned the district that the present boiler was in need of major repairs or replacement. Finally this Spring the inspector refused to pass the boiler at all without major repairs or replacements being made. After much consideration of various procedures that might be followed the Board decided to replace the present boiler which has been in operation since 1924.

According to state law all public buildings, including schools, must employ a licensed architect for any kind of building or remodeling project that would exceed the sum of $10,000. Therefore the Board secured the services of Boling Engineering Consultants of Champaign, Ill. After thorough inspection of the present heating sytem they recommended that the present furnace be replaced by an oil burner unit. Bids were advertised and the lowest bidder for the job was Muse Plumbing and Heating Contractors of Hillsboro, Ill. Their contract calls for completion of the installatoin no later than Oct. 1, 1960. The total cost for the installation will be approximately $30,000.

That 'Itsy Bitsy' Song Hit Is Result Of Coffee Break

NEW YORK (AP) — Between the dawn and the noon hour, when office spirits are beginning to lower, there comes a pause in the day's occupation that is known as the coffee break.

Like the Mexican siesta, the American coffee break is a time for dozing and dreaming.

But contrary to popular management opinion, the coffee break frequently results in something more than ugly ring marks on desks and soggy paper cups in the waste paper baskets.

Take the case of songwriters Paul Vance and Lee Pockriss.

Less than two months ago they were in a recording studio making a demonstration record of a song called "Petticoat Fly." While the engineers were getting ready for a play back, Vance and Pockriss made the usual morning small talk over a cup of coffee and a slab of Danish.

Vance allowed that his wife had been thinking of getting a bikini but had given up the idea because she didn't have the nerve to wear one.

Bachelor Pockriss sympathized with her timidity. He went to the piano and began pecking out a dirge for bashful bikini buyers. Vance supplied a lyric, Pockriss added another. Vance changed a note here, Pockriss added a ntoe there.

Twenty-five minutes later, the nation's current No. 1 hit song, "Itsy Bitsy Teenie Weenie Yellow Polka Dot Bikini," was born. The coffee in their cups was still warm when Vance and Pockriss handed the song over to publisher George Pincus.

Within a week 16-year-old Brian Hyland, a Kapp recording star, was blaeting out the saga of the girl who was too timid to come out of the locker because of the brevity of her yellow polka dot bikini.

"Petticoat Fly," the business at hand before and after the coffee break, went absolutely nowhere. "Itsy Bitsy" shot to the top of the charts in four weeks, sold over a million records and stirred a late summer boom in bikini sales. Bikini dolls popped up in toy stores. Real ones popped up on beaches all over the country.

Not since Elvis Presley's formative years had any song made it so big so quick.

Despite the impressive sales figures, Vance and Pockriss's profit on the song would barely fill either half of a bikini. Their cut on the record is a standard ½ cent on each sale, which for a million sales works out to $5,000 apiece. Performance fees from ASCAP (American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers) will bring them another $5,000 apiece. Still, $10,000 for 45 minutes effort is nice work.

Vance and Pockriss, who have been working together for less than three years, are an unusual song writing combination.Both are composers and both are lyricists. But there all similarity ends.

Vance, a smiling, happy-go lucky type, has no formal musical training. He was in the auto wrecking business before taking up song writing as a hobby and the professionally.

Pockriss, a brooding serious type, has an extensive background in classical composition, including an M.A. in musicology from N.Y.U. and has done graduate work with Aaron Copeland at Tanglewood, Mass. In addition to several popular hits, he has written ballets for television and is the composer of "Ernest in Love," a widely acclaimed off-Broadway musical based on Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Ernest."

Looking For Work

He Went To Liberia, The 'Forgotten Land'

By GABE KAIMOWITZ
Written For NEA

NEW YORK—(NEA)— Amid the cry for African nationalism and independence, one country, Liberia, has been virtually forgotten here because "it has been independent for so long."

One young American who worked directly with the native population has come back to tell us that this country could be the hub of free enterprise on the Dark Continent.

Stanley Siegelbaum, 25, spent more than a year there as a civil engineer working on a 150-mile stretch of highway in this land on the West Coast between Sierra Leone, Guinea, and the Ivory coast, natoins first first realizing independence.

Liberia is a nation with which the U.S. has had more direct legitimate commercial and governmental contact (since 1822) than any other in Africa.

Its official language is English, its currency standard American, its government based on the U.S. structure.

Its population of some 1¼ million is 99 per cent Negro. And more important, it has never been colonized in the "traditional imperial" sense.

• • •

What did a white man who was used to playing ball on the New York City streets find in this land?

He found a native population friendly to the U.S. In particular, he will remember Joseph Tarbli, a native Liberian, who was a trainee on the highway project.

"Tarbli once asked me if I was Negro (he is not)," Siegelbaum says. "When I asked him why, he said that I did not treat my fellow workers (Negroes) condescendingly, the way some others do."

So the natives threw a farewell party fof Siegelbaum, a rare honor accorded a white man there.

Here Siegelbaum injected an appeal to U.S. companies sending Americans abroad to check carefully for racial prejudices among its representatives. "Just one wrong (biased) attitude there can slow down a particular project," he observes.

"Americans, you see, become more than workers," he says. "We must be teachers, as well, of necessity."

While there are no more than a handful of Liberians who hold engineering degrees, Siegelbaum says that the natives, particularly those assigned as trainees, who are working on a project are taught engineering techniques.

"If you don't teach them, you have no road," he says.

• • •

Siegelbaum says the foundation has been laid for building the country politically, economically and socially.

The government is headed by President-elect William V. S. Tubman, who has been in power since 1944. There are legislative and judicial branches, two Houses of Congress "and almost every freedom although opposition to the reigning party is discouraged," Siegelbaum says.

Educational programs, particularly in missionary schools, are adequate through the high school level, he believes.

"Tribal strife, evident elsewhere on the continent, is nil in Liberia since the Kru tribe came into the fold in the 1930's."

While the country is plagued with a variety of diseases—Siegelbaum had mild attacks of malaria and dysentery—"the government and American companies provide care even in the outskirts" where he spent most of his time.

Aside from the danger of illness and a hot, humid climate, the American finds few actual discomforts, Siegelbaum says.

"There is a place for him. There may be a particular place here for the educated American Negro even though the natives have been led to believe, all too often, that he is a second class citizen and that they would be getting second class consideration if he came in a professional capacity."

And perhaps most important: "The fervent racial hatred that exists elsewhere in Africa is virtually non-existent in Liberia."

Place Your Feet On Your Desk For Foot Health, Doctor Advises

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

ROCKLAND, Mass. — (NEA)— Here is another one of those niggling anniversaries that nobody can remember. Or forget.

It is exactly 40 years since the plant known as dermatophytosis was brought from the Orient to grow in the U. S. And today, there is hardly an American home without it.

You probably know it best by the name "athlete's foot," that invisible scourge that burns, itches, cracks, swells and tires your feet. You probably have it. You probably always will, according to the man who knows most about it.

He is Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, chairman of the National Foot Health Council here in Rockland, Mass. He is the man who first coined the name "athlete's foot." He has devoted most of his professional career to fighting this ailment and our other foot ills.

According to Dr. Lelyveld:

There is no cure for athlete's foot now, or in the immediate future.

The antiseptic footbaths usually found at public pools, gymnasiums and showers are almost worthless in the battle against athlete's foot.

Even if we sterilize our floors, socks, shoes, we would probably make no significant dent in the problem.

One recent experiment at New York University's Post Graduate Medical School seems to sum up the body of knowledge. After thorough examinations, 45 subjects, with no evidence of the infection, were deliberately exposed to the fungus—one foot was placed in a contaminated bath, the other in sterile water.

Result: nobody came down with athlete's foot in either foot—even after six weeks.

Reason? According to Dr. Lelyveld, the athlete's foot fungus lives in the horny layer of skin on our feet, awaiting the proper conditions to strike the real skin. The only answer, to date, to prevent these "proper conditions" is frequently drying, powdering and mercerized cotton socks.

But our foot problems are more than skin deep. Dr. Lelyveld sees the whole situation getting worse, not better. His research shows that 99 per cent of the U. S. children have perfectly normal feet at birth.

But by high school graduation time, 65 per cent of the boys and 85 per cent of the girls have real foot problems.

By adulthood, the feet of 90 per cent of all Americans are crippled to some degree.

During World War II, more than one-third of the men rejected by the military were counted out because of foot problems. During the Korean War, twice as many men were rejected for foot ailments than for any other single reason.

The statistics are not improving, Dr. Lelyveld says. The foot is a very delicate machine: 26 bones and bound together by 107 ligaments, supported by 19 muscles. It has to raise, balance and absorb the shock of the body's weight with each step. For an average man, that's 175 pounds lifted 50 times per minute when walking.

"Poor shoe fit is only half the trouble," Dr. Lelyveld said. "The unsuspected problems can result from poor sock or stocking fit, causing pressure and irritation during walking."

But giving up walking is not the answer either. A recent U. S. military medical investigation shows that passengers on long air flights are putting their feet and legs in real jeopardy of phlebitis if they don't take their shoes off and walk through the plane from time to time.

Concludes Dr. Lelyveld: "We are killing our feet. And it's largely the price of civilization. But there are a few things we can do to help the situation.

"But it is difficult to convince people to take their shoes off in the office and wiggle their toes in the air for a few minutes several times each day.

"It is also a good idea to prop your feet up on the desk for 10 minutes now and then. But people tell me the boss might object."

Olympic Stars Call The Tunes; Carabinieri Band Plays Them

By BARNEY OLDFIELD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

ROME — (NEA) — Could you live with 102,000 sheets of music crowding you?

If your name in maestro Domenico Fantini. you must.

The thousands of Olympic athletes assembled in Rome for the Games will call the tune—or national anthem—which will be played in honor of their victory performances. It's up to maestro Fantini and his Carabinieri band, or any one of five others, to play any of these songs.

If the International Olympic Committee accepts Ethiopia, 88 nations will be represented here. Whether the country has only five men entered (Liberia) or some 400 (United States and the Soviet Union), it has a national anthem which might be played.

• • •

In addition to playing these songs, the Carabinieri band also will perform in the Olympic opening and closing ceremonies, both heavily loaded with music. At one point, the band will synchronize with the 100-voice National Academy of St. Cecilia choir.

During the Games, the Carabinieri band, along with those representing the Italian air force (90 pieces); the guardia di finanza (90); the public security police (90); streetcar and bus employes (75) and the traffic police (70), will be rotated to play the national music of event winners at all stadiums where medals are awarded.

Maestro Fantini (Captain, if you like military titles) is conscious of his responsibility. He has conducted the 102-piece Carabinieri band for 13 years.

Fantini and his band toured the U.S. in 1957, covering New York, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago and, as he puts it, "een Oklahoma even." Even before he donned his Carabinieri uniform, Fantini was considered to be one of the country's finest musicians and professors of music, of La Scala and Milan Opera caliber.

• • •

A year before Fantini was to pick up his baton and lead his band in Olympic numbers on Aug. 25, 1960, the International Olympic Committee began dragooning piano copies of the anthems from countries represented.

From these versions Maestro Fantini worked up instrumental copies for his Carabinieri band and the other five groups.

'In my library," he says, slightly horrified, "I now have more than 102,000 individual sheets of music."

Whose anthem will be number one on the 1960 Olympic "hit parade?"

"We expect to play American and Soviet music the most," he says. "I hope it will be a little more American than Russian."

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market this week managed a moderate gain on average while "digesting" the wide advance of the previous week.

It was a narrowly moving, cautious market with only one three million share day. Volume declined to 13,702,603 shares from 14,699,940 the prior week.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.09 to 629.27 as it nudged through a theoretical upside resistance level.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.70 to 221.40.

The first four sessions were evenly divided—two small gains and two narrow losses, according to the averages. Friday provided a fairly sharp rise. It came as a surprise because it was a sluggish day. The boost resulted from a combination of gains by blue chips represented in the averages while the list as a whole performed indifferently.

Even on the days when the averages were declining, however, more stocks advanced than declined. By Friday, this superiority of plus over minus signs had continued for 12 straight sessions.

The steady predominance of gains over losses plus the ability of the market to absorb profit taking despite the previous large advance and the rather drab background of news, were encouraging technical factors. In a quiet way, considerable investment buying was under way.

General Motors, frequently cited as a bellwether of the entire list, was a beneficiary of this high quality buying and it rose 1¼ as third most active stock.

Of the 1,427 issues traded this week, 813 advanced and 488 declined. There were 188 new highs and 34 new lows.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Continental Industries, up ¼ at 8½ on 160,300 shares.

For the third week in a row Treasury bond prices declined while corporates gained ground this week. Trading was lackluster in both markets.

Despite advances late in the week, losses of U.S. government securities reached a full point for the week. Meanwhile, all sections of the corporate list except foreign bonds closed out their fifth consecutive week at 1960 weekly peaks, according to the Associated Press average.

Industrials turned in the best performance in the corporate market, gaining more than half a point on the AP index. Rails, utilities and high grade issues recorded moderate advances and foreign bonds posted a minimum drop.

Volume totaled $23,894,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange compared with $24,655,000 last week and $24,811,000 a year ago. Daily average volume dropped to $4,778,800 from near the five million level.

Again the long term treasury issues lost the most.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — (USDA) — Following is a summary of the hog, cattle and sheep markets for the week:

Hogs—Compared to last week's close, barrows and gilts 25-50 lower, sows 25-75 lower. On the close mixed lots No 1 and 2 and mixed No 1, 2 and 3 190-250 lb barrows and gilts brought 17.00-17.25, around 150 head mostly No 1 and 2 200-230 lb weights at 17.25. Late sales mixed grades No 1, 2 and 3 and No 2 and 3 190-300 lb butchers ranged from 16.50-17.00, weights over 250 lbs very scarce. Mixed grades No 1, 2 and 3 and No 2 and 3 300-400 lb sows 14.50-16.00. Mixed grades No 2 and 3 and No 3 400-550 lb 13.00-14.50.

Cattle — Slaughter steers sold steady to 50 lower, but mostly steady to 25 lower, heifers steady to 25 lower, cows strong to 50 higher, bulls mostly 50 higher, vealers steady. Most high choice and mixed choice and prime steers 25.50-27.50 with several loads mixed high choice and prime 27.00-27.50, good to average choice steers 22.25-25.50 with most average choice 24.50-25.50. Many loads average choice 1250-1325 lbs 24.50-24.75 and few loads mostly choice around 1300 lbs down to 24.25. Several loads choice 950-1050 lb yearlings 25.00-25.50. Mixed good and choice steers 23.75-24.50, good 1150 lb steers 23.00 and some good around 1200 lbs 22.50. Several loads high choice and mixed choice and prime slaughter heifers 24.75-25.50. Most good to high choice heifers 20.50-24.75 with choice 23.00 up. Utility and standard heifers 15.00-20.00. Commercial cows 13.50-16.25, few standard 16.00-17.00, utility and commercial bulls 17.00-21.00 at the close. Good and choice vealers 22.00-25.00.

Sheep — Compared Friday last week — spring slaughter lambs steady to 50 higher with advance limited to choice and prime grades. Slaughter ewes steady to 50 higher and few lots yearlings fully steady. Few mostly prime native spring lambs 21.75-22.00, bulk choice and prime 20.00-21.50 and numerous lots mixed good and choice 17.00-19.50. Mixed utility and good spring lambs 14.00-16.50. Cull to choice shorn slaughter ewes 3.00-4.00.

CHICAGO (AP) — After three successive days of declines the butcher hog marked firmed on Thursday but ended the week 25 to 50 cents lower.

The early weakness was ascribed principally to a slack shipper demand which improved late in the week after prices had slipped to their lowest peak in more than three months at $17.25 a hundredweight.

The supply was unchanged from the previous week here but it was down 4 per cent at the 12 major markets.

After the largest cattle supply in six weeks hit the market on Monday, offerings were somewhat more moderate thereafter but slaughter steer prices lost as much as 50 cents a hundredweight for the week.

During the week the average price of slaughter steers slipped to about $24.80 a hundredweight, the lowest since October 1957. Buyers noted that Canadian packers took some of the supply, the first time they had been in the market here since February. Their requirements were 1,000-1,100 lb steers.

Demand in the sheep market was moderate to good most of the week and spring slaughter lambs grading choice to prime advanced 50 cents a hundredweight. Other grades were steady. Most choice and prime offerings brought $20-21.50, a few $21.75-22. Buyers were bearish on other grades and these sold down to $17 for mixed good and choice.

Powers Family Seeks Clemency

it because he is an American."

Barbara said her husband had told her he did not know she and his parents were in Moscow until he saw them in the courtroom.

"He saw us the first day of the trial—when I waved at him—but he couldn't stand to look at us, it upset him too much," she said.

Barbara said her husband had told her he knew nothing about what was going on in the world because "he said he had been in solitary confinement for 108 days and saw his first magazine Wednesday. He didn't say what the magazine was, but he had been told there was quite a bit of publicity, and he didn't like it."

Mrs. Powers, 25, asked what she planned to do now.

"My plans are indefinite," she said. "We have not been advised where my husband will be and about visiting privileges."

Asked if her husband commented on the sentence, she replied: "He said nothing about it except he hadn't known what to expect, including the death sentence."

She said he was currently reading "Moby Dick" and had picked up a few words of Russian such as "Yes," "No" and "matches."

She said that although he did not say so, "I got the impression he didn't think anything we could do would help. He doesn't know where he's going to be sent and he doesn't know whether I can see him."

Power's father, of Pound, Va., said after talking with his son at the family reunion: "He's the same boy I raised from a little feller right on up." The elder Powers met with reporters in the hotel lobby.

Asked what he was planning to do, he said: "There is nothing we can do for the moment in this case. It must be pursued slow and easy, and then it will work faster. Too much has been said already."

U.N. Meets Today On Congo Crisis

lious Katanga Province.

Reminded of Lumumba's statements he would seek help from some friendly power if necessary to subdue Katanga, Kuznetsov was asked at a news conference whether the Soviet Union would give military help.

In answer, he read a Soviet statement of last July 21: "The Soviet government, in the event aggression against the Congo continues . . . will not shrink from decisive measures calculated to repulse the aggressors who are clearly acting with the support of colonial powers."

Radio Moscow meanwhile broadcast a long Soviet government statement demanding an immediate and unconditional halt to "shameless aggression" against the Congo. It accused Belgium of retaining troops in the Congo in defiance of the U.N. Security Council, accused the Western powers of instigating Belgium's action and bitterly attacked Katanga Premier Moise Tshombe as a traitor to his country.

The statement said the Kremlin insists on the removal of obstacles to sending Congolese troops into Katanga and supports the Congo's call for the immediate dispatch of a team of neutral observers.

The Soviet declaration wound up with a previously stated warning that, "If the aggressors do not get out of the Congo republic and do not give up plans for dismembering it, peace-loving countries will be faced with the necessity of taking other steps for stopping the aggression."

Hammarskjold has insisted firmly that the U.N. force must remain neutral in Congo domestic affairs and cannot serve to help Lumumba subdue secessionist Katanga. It was to get endorsement of that stand that he asked for the emergency Council meeting.

An aide said Hammarskjold is preparing a strong statement on Lumumba's challenge for the Council.

The secretary-general conferred during the day with the Moroccan, Guinean and Tunisian ambassadors and with French Ambassador Armand Berard, Security Council president for August.

African delegation spokesman would say only that they talked with the Congolese for six hours to hear their side of the case and that there will be another conference of the nine-nation African group Sunday morning before the Council meets. They declined to disclose the trend of the talks.

In Leopoldville, Lumumba told a news conference his Cabinet had authorized him to make contact for direct aid from any country if the Security Council does not satisfy his request for a special African-Asian observer group to oversee the U.N. force in the Congo.

The report from Leopoldville also said Lumumba apologized for the clubbing of Canadian communications experts with the U.N. force last Thursday.

The U.N. here said it has received an apologetic letter from Col. Mobutu, Congolese chief of staff, for the mistreatment of the Canadians. The letter called the incident a "shameful occurrence" and asked the U.N. to transmit its apologies to the Canadian government. It expressed a hope the incident could be considered closed.

U.S. Bars Using Aid Funds To Buy Sugar From Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has refused to let other countries buy sugar from Cuba with foreign aid funds, officials said Saturday.

An estimated six million dollars worth of sugar purchases are involved so far.

The action was taken because Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime has been harassing U. S. ships in Cuban ports, officials explained.

The Foreign Aid Act requires that 50 per cent of cargoes of commodities bought by other nations with U. S. foreign aid funds be handled by U. S. ships, except under emergency conditions.

An official of the International Cooperation Administration told a reporter the Cuban government calls this economic aggression "but the action was taken purely because U. S. ships are increasingly concerned about going into Cuban ports because there has been some harassment of them."

State Department officials say American ship captains have been refusing to go to Cuba.

The ban applies to about six million dollars' worth of sugar still outstanding from a 10-million-dollar purchase authorization issued some time ago to Morocco, the ICA official said.

And it will be applied to any other purchases from Cuba with foreign aid funds, the official added.

OAS Ministers Vote To Condemn Dominican

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Western hemisphere foreign ministers in an unprecedented action voted Saturday to break off diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic and embargo all arms shipments to its strongman regime.

Dominican delegates walked out of the meeting as the ministers forwarded their resolution to the Organization of American States for its certain approval.

Dominican Foreign Minister Porfirio Herrera Baez refused to comment on the condemnation of his government. His departure does not necessarily mean Dominican withdrawal from the OAS, however, as all Latin-American states and the United States have automatic membership.

The strong action against the Dominican Republic was without precedent in Latin-American history and diplomatic sources said the mood of the ministers spells trouble for leftist Cuba when its case comes up next week. Cuba's charges of U.S. aggression got a cool reception when first voiced earlier this week.

The foreign ministers convicted Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo's Dominican strongman regime of aggression against Venezuela. Venezuela ccused Trujillo officials of backing a recent plot to assassinate President Romulo Betancourt and to overthrow his Venezuelan government. The Dominican Republic denied the charges.

In agreeing with Venezuela, the ministers passed over a U.S. suggestion that the OAS appoint a special committee to assure an orderly transition to a new regime in the Dominican Republic.

The foreign ministers decided to pass the question of a special committee over to a second meeting Monday on foreign threats to the hemisphere, where U.S. charges of Communist penetration in Cuba will be considered.

Eight Latin-American nations already have broken relations with the Dominican Republic.

Foreign Minister Raul Roa of Cuba, meanwhile, kept up his attack on Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

The first speaker at the plenary session, Roa said Herter's comments Thursday on the Cuban's attack on the United States were "Hitlerite." Herter had arisen in reply to Roa and said the Cuban's speech reminded him "of a direct parallel of speeches I have heard coming from representatives of the Soviet Union."

SENTENCE, FINE CAR OWNER INVOLVED IN CRASH KILLING 3

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — The owner of an automobile involved in a July 5 accident in which three persons were killed was sentenced Friday to one year in the St. Charles County jail and fined $1,000.

Thomas Hutter, 29, of Cahokia, Ill., was found guilty by Magistrate Webster Karrenbrock of allowing an unlicensed driver to operate his car.

Stunned by the penalty, the maximum under Missouri law, Hutter said he would appeal.

Miss Norma Jean Campbell, 22, of St. Louis was driving Hutter's car when it smashed head on into another auto on Interstate High way 70.

Hutter testified at a coroner's inquest he was not aware that Mrs. Campbell did not have a driver's license.

Mrs. Campbell was seriously injured in the crash, which took the lives of Richard Sullins, 19; his wife, Judith, 16; and Karen Watson, 6, Mrs. Sullins' sister. All lived in Overland, a suburb of St. Louis.

Mrs. Campbell was named in a manslaughter warrant. It has not been served because she still is a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital here. A highway patrol officer testified the alcoholic content in Mrs. Campbell's blood at the time of the accident was above the intoxication point.

Catholic Prelate Predicts Drive Against Cuban Church

HAVANA (AP)—A Cuban prelate predicted Saturday the Roman Catholic Church in this country eventually will be reduced to the same status it has in nations behind the Iron Curtain.

The prelate, who declined to permit use of his name, said in an interview this is the feeling of the Church hierarchy in Cuba. He also said Church, authorities expect a campaign aimed at discrediting the clergy, even to having men in priest's robes appear drunk with women in cabarets.

He said Church authorities also fear government laws against the Church, perhaps including expulsion of foreign priests and expropriation of church property.

Archbishop Evelio Diaz, the highest-ranking Roman Catholic prelate in Cuba, was not available for comment on these statements, but other churchmen, including a representative of the archbishop's office, affirmed them.

Neither was there any comment from the Cuban government of Prime Minister Fidel Castro, although a request for comment was submitted to the office of President Osvaldo Dorticos.

The high Church official did no refer directly to the Castro government. But he emphasized that a recent pastoral letter, signed by top Church authorities here, made clear the Catholic Church's unwavering stand against communism.

"The Church will not remain silent and the government will not stop attacking," he said. "The situation must become more tense."

Other priests have reflected the same viewpoint in private discussions.

Said one: "They will kill Catholics when the time comes, as things are headed."

Asked for comment on that remark, the prelate said: "It may come to that."

He stressed that "the church will not provoke incidents."

Castro charged recently the U.S. Embassy was instigating the Catholic Church to provocations against his revolutionary regime.

The prelate denied that his Church's anti-Communist stand was prompted by foreign influence or by persons adversely affected by Castro's laws. He said the Church's position is in defense of Christian principles.

Castro has said there was no reason for what he termed systematic provocations against his regime, since his government has not touched by Church property or interfered in its operations. Dorticos affirmed that the government would continue respecting all religious creeds.

The Catholic leader said recent demonstrations against the Church were the work of "prepared groups which are protected." He added that the Catholic Church was not under attack as an institution, but through its clergy, as counterrevolutionary.

Diver Drowns; Searching For Three Brothers

HARRISONVILLE, Ill. (AP)—A skin diver searching for three young brothers believed drowned in the Mississippi River was caught in an undertow and drowned Saturday night.

The victim was Richard Dependahl, about 35, route 2, Waterloo, Ill., the father of six children and brother-in-law of Monroe County Deputy Sheriff Gregory Kipping.

Dependahl and two other skin divers were caught in the undertow. The other two were rescued. One diver Henry Mentel Jr., about 42, was taken to St. Clement's Hospital in Red Bud, Ill., suffering from exhaustion.

Dependahl's body was recovered about 45 minutes after the drowning. Efforts to revive him failed.

Fire department rescue teams from Waterloo and Valmeyer joined with the Coast Guard and the skin divers in the search for the missing youths.

The search was called off for the night after Depndahl's drowning. It will be resumed Sunday.

The brothers believed drowned are William Smtih, 19, Elmer, 17, and Donald 10, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Smith of Harrisonville.

Clothing belonging to the brothers was found in neat piles on the river bank near the old Harrisonville ferry landing about two miles from Harrisonville and 35 miles south of St. Louis. The boys had left home about 3:30 p.m. Friday.

The parents said the boys weren't strong swimmers. The river bottom drops off sharply where they apparently entered the water. Six feet from the bank, the river is 15 feet deep.

Brooks Elected Commander Of Illinois Legion

CHICAGO (AP)—Clarence E. Brooks of Carmi Saturday was elected department commander of the Illinois American Legion.

Brooks, senior vice commander for the last year, was named to succeed John H. Geiger of Park Ridge as the Illinois Legion leader. Carl Yost of Morrison succeeds Brooks as senior vice commander.

Brooks and Yost are both World War II veterans.

National Commander Martin McKnealy called on Legionnaires to "strengthen the morals and programs of the American Legion in this time of world unrest."

McKnealy praised the work of the Illinois Legion and said 1959-60 has been "a good year."

Citing the founding principles of the Legion, McKnealy reiterated "the need for a stronger and more dedicated American Legion to combat widespread discontent.

The Illinois contingent closed its final business session of the 42nd annual convention by calling for an amendment to the state constitution legalizing bingo.

The department's legislative committee will present the resolution to the next session of the General Assembly which rejected such a proposal in 1959. The resolution specified that the amendment should allow bingo only on a local option basis limited to non-profit religious, charitable, fraternal or veteran organizations. Such an amendment, if it cleared the legislature, would have to be approved by the voters in a referendum.

Republicans In House Outline Farm Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten House Republicans Saturday outlined an emergency farm program they plan to introduce in the current session of Congress.

It would increase the cost at which government-held farm surpluses may be sold and provide a voluntary land retirement program under which the farmer would be paid from surplus stocks for land taken out of production.

The ten Midwestern Republicans joining in sponsoring the proposal said it would provide a quick boost to farm income and reduce the amount of surplus stocks in storage.

Rep. Charles B. Hoeven (R-Iowa), spokesman for the group, said legislation embodying the proposal would be introduced Monday.

The land retirement plan closely resembles one the Democrats have said they would push in the current session. The Democratic plan also provides for stimulating the sale of surplus food abroad by cutting interest costs and fixing a longer repayment.

The second part of the GOP proposal would set a price of 5 per cent above full parity as the minimum at which the Commodity Credit Corpotation could sell surplus stocks.

Present law permits the government to sell surpluses at 5 per cent above the current support price, which ranges from 60 per cent to 75 per cent of partity, parity being a price judged to be fair to farmers in relation to their costs.

The GOP group said the CCC release price has actually become a ceiling price for farmers and has tended to depress farm prices.

New Laos Regime Girds For Revolt

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Prince Souvanna Phouma reported Saturday counterrevolutionary troops were moving toward Vientiane. Souvanna Phouma is the premier appointed by neutralist rebels who seized power here two weeks ago.

"The first contact will mean bloodshed," said Souvanna Phouma.

He did not say whether the anticoup forces were coming from north or south.

Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, ousted defense minister, commands the counterrevolutionary soldiers. He set up headquarters recently at Sawannakhet, 185 miles south of Vientiane. Other forces of his are in Luang Prabang, site of the royal residence, 120 miles north of Vientiane.

Both Savannakhet and Luang Prabang are on the Mekong River which forms the boundary with Thailand to the west and south.

The American Embassy to Bangkok, Thailand, said 168 Americans had arrived there by air from Vientiane. Their evacuation was caused by the threat of floods from the monsoon downpour and is only temporary, said a spokesman. Americans in Laos —most of them connected with U. Marines Plot VIP Treatment For Factory Foreman

Maxwell kept a 120mm shell casing on the bar for the collection, and the money mounted up.

Miller explained to Gestson that he had already taken his vacation from his job at Caterpillar Tractor Co. and couldn't get away for a visit.

"That Gestson! He called up my boss. Before I knew it, they had plane reservations made for me to leave O'Hare Airport in Chicago Aug. 31. The plant community relations manager called me in and told me."

Sally and the youngsters won't go along, but Mrs. Miller understands.

"I just told those boys to send my husband back in one piece," she said. "They told me, 'Sure, in one piece, but badly wrinkled.'"

The Marines say Miller's going to get VIP treatment such as has never been accorded any visitor before.

Miller knows Marines, and he trembles a bit when he thinks what the shindig could involve.

"Those El Toro guys who want to give me jet plane rides worry me the most," he said.

What is there about Miller that captured the fancy of Gestson and so many Laguna Marines?

It might be something in his personality picked up while he was a Navy pharmacist's mate at Camp Matthews rifle range near San Diego during World War II in 1942 and 1943.

"About 10 per cent of those Marine boots got sick during their rugged training at the range. And my duty was partly being a Dutch Uncle to them," he said.

Their cells were equipped with chemicals to absorb moisture and purify the air, just as on an atomic submarine. They were fed with an automatic device which they were trained to use before being launched into space.

Their movements were televised periodically and pictures were transmitted to the scientific academy here which analyzed the moves. White dogs were chosen because they show up better on TV.

The dog Squirrel had rather strong reactions with her breathing, changing from four pants per second to one pant every five seconds.

Arrow's breathing rate was more moderate and as the hours wore on established a rate of 30 pants per minute. Normal breathing for dogs ranges from 20 to 40.

The dogs were trained to wear space suits and live in cramped quarters.

Calling it a "tremendous feat," Lovell added that it was "not least a tribute to the cooperation of Soviet and American scientists in this field."

JSH Redlegs Advance To Quarterfinals Of State Meet

Garner Withstands 13-Inning Duel For 4-3 First Round Win

The Jacksonville State Hospital Redlegs rallied after blowing a 3 run lead in the 5th and managed to hang on in a 13-inning thriller to defeat Champaign 4-3 in the opening round of the Illinois State Softball Tournament.

The Redlegs started out as if they were going to make a run away game out of the contest but the Champaign pitcher settled down and the redlegs were unable to score again from the second inning until the two-out stage of the 13th frame, when Bob Winstead stroked a single up the middle to score Ken Azbell with the winning run.

Bob Garner went the entire route for the local nine and pitched a magnificent game as of the three runs scored by Champaign only one was earned. It would be hard to pick out a star for the game as all of the players contributed a great deal to the victory.

This afternoon at 3:00 the Redlegs will play the Lasch Dairy team of Bloomington. The winner of this game will play the winner of the Aton-Monticello game. With two victories the local nine would qualify for the state tournament finals. The winner of the state tourney will advance to the national regional at Peru, Ind.

Packard Wins 100-Miler At Illinois State Fair

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Jim Packard of Speedway, Ind., won the 100-mile U.S. Auto Club championship race at the Illinois State Fair Saturday on a muddy track before a capacity crowd of 35,000.

Packard lapped each of the 18 starters with the exception of second-place finisher, Eddie Sachs of Outer Valley, Pa. Packard won a purse of about $20,000.

Only eight cars finished the race, which was held up for an hour and 40 minutes at the end of the 30th lap by rain. Jim Branson of Champaign, Ill., held the lead for the first 15 laps, but mechanical trouble forced him to slow down and he finished in seventh place.

Packard, 28, took the lead from Branson at the end of the 15th lap. Branson had the fastest qualifying time, 34.5 seconds for the one-mile lap, in winning the Gov. William G. Stratton Trophy.

The wet dirt track caused several spins, but no injuries.

Elmer George of Speedway, Ind., took third place. He was followed by Boyd Ruby of Houston Tex.; Wayne Weiler of Phoenix, Ariz.; Chuck Stevenson of Long Beach, Calif.; Branson; Len Sutton of Portland, Ore., last year's winner; Johnny Thomson of Boyertown, Pa.; and Jim Hurtubise of Lennox, Calif.

If Mahaffey Had Jitters He's Shook 'Em All Now

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Art Mahaffey had the jitters when he came up with the Philadelphia Phillies last month, they're long gone now. The kid right hander has won each of his last two starts — and he's done it against Pittsburgh and Milwaukee, the 1-2 clubs in the National League race.

After beating the Pirates 4-3 last Monday in his first major league decision, the 22-year-old rookie came back and pitched his first complete game for a 3-2, six hit victory at Milwaukee Friday night.

That kept the Braves from closing the gap on the front running Pirates, who still lead by 7½ games despite a 4-3 loss at Cincinnati. The St. Louis Cardinals, after losing six straight, regained third place from Los Angeles by beating the Dodgers, 1-0, although held to just three hits by Johnny Podres. San Francisco beat Chicago's Cubs 2-1.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox ripped Kansas City 10-0 and trimmed New York's lead to 1½ games after the Yankees had lost 4-2 at Washington. Third place Baltimore, two games behind, was idled by fog at Boston. Detroit beat Cleveland 5-3.

Mahaffey, now 2-0, shut out the Braves on three hits until the eighth inning, then gave up a double by Del Crandall and Ed Mathews' 27th home run.

The Reds came from behind with three runs in the fifth, capped by Vada Pinson's two run homer, against Pittsburgh's Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell (9-6).

The Cardinals beat Podres (10-9) in the ninth inning without a hit, scoring an unearned run on a walk and Junior Gilliam's two out error. Larry Jackson (14-10), who combined with Stan Musial and Daryl Spencer for the three singles allowed by Podres, gave up five hits.

Orlando Cepeda's 20th homer, a two-run shot in the fourth inning, gave it to the Giants as southpaw Mike McCormick (11-8) out-dueled Dick Ellsworth (6-9) with a three hitter.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Buchholz, Laver In Newport Tennis Finals

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — Earl Buchholz Jr., of St. Louis and Rod Laver of Australia Saturday won their way into the finals of the Newport Casino Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Buchholz, a 19-year-old Davis Cupper, seeded third, defeated Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, seeded second, 9-7, 3-6, 5-7, 7-5, 6-3.

Top-seeded Laver, the Australian national champion, disposed of Bobby Wilson of England, 6-4, 6-0, 3-6, 8-6. Wilson was seeded fourth.

Laver is seeking an unprecedented grand slam of Eastern Lawn Tennis tournaments. So far this summer, he has won the Pennsylvania state tourney at Merion, Pa., the Southampton, N. Y., Invitation contest and the Eastern Grass Courts championship at South Orange, N. J., in that order.

In doubles semifinals, top seeded Laver and Robert Mark of Australia defeated fourth seeded Wilson and Mike Sangster of England, 8-6, 10-8, 6-2. Second seeded Buchholz and Charles McKinley of St. Louis defeated third seeded Bob Hewit and Marty Mulligan of Australia, 6-1, 8-10, 6-4, 7-5.

Hebert shot a six-under 66 Saturday and Fairfield had a seven-under 65 as the two pulled four shots in front of the rest of the field.

1911 Model T Wins Fair Prize

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A car older than many of the spectators at the Illinois State Fair won a grand championship Saturday.

A 1911 model T Ford, owned by Lester Klee of Hammond, Ind., took top honors in the antique auto show, which displayed more than 100 ancient and unusual autos.

The oldest auto was 1902 Pioneer.

The old autos paraded before the grandstand prior to the 100-mile auto race, composed of more modern cars.

Motorcycle races will highlight activities Sunday, the fair's last day.

FANS GET BONUS

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — The Atlntic City Race Course is giving its patrons a bonus during the current 50-day meeting, a ninth race on the track's big days.

"We felt the ninth race would help ease the traffic leaving the track as many fans leave after the seventh race, which will continue as the feature, and others after the eighth," says General Manager Phillip J. Baker. "Many of the tracks now run nine races so that we are in effect following the pattern."

Nine races will be offered on Wednesday and Saturday through Labor Day and on Saturdays only thereafter.

Supertest III Overcomes U.S. In Harmsworth

PICTON, Ont. (AP) — Sensational Miss Supertest III completely mastered a crippled United States' team Saturday and kept for Canad the Harmsworth Trophy, international powerboating's highest bauble.

The successful Canadian defender roared to her second straight victory in the best-of-three rides while only one American boat of what started as a three-boat fleet finished.

Gale V of Detroit, the top United States' hope and runnerup to Supertest in Friday's first race, was unable to get her engine going. She was out of the race before the start.

Nitrogen Too, leader across the starting line, went dead in the water on the fifth lap.

Only Nitrogen, Nitrogen Too's sister craft from Wilmington, Del., was able to carry the U.S.'s hopes to the finish. And Nitrogen was about four miles behind the zooming Supertest at the end of the 45-mile grind around the Bay of Quinte's five-mile course.

Buhl Blanks Phillies, 1-0

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee right-hander Bob Buhl blanked Philadelphia on five hits for a 1-0 victory Saturday night as the Braves put together three straight singles in the fourth inning for their only run off veteran Robin Roberts.

Buhl struck out six and walked three in helping the second-place Braves to remain 7½ games behing front-running Pittsburgh, which defeated Cincinnati 10-7.

The Braves managed only five singles off Roberts.

Del Crandall led off the fourth inning with a hit through the middle and went to second on Eddie Mathews' line single to right. Hank Aaron then bounced a single between third and short, scoring Crandall.

The only extra base hit of the game, which was delayed for 40 minutes by rain, was a double by Tony Taylor, leading off the sixth. However, Buhl retired the next three batters in easy fashion.

The only other Philadelphia threat came in the eighth when, with one out, John Callison drew a walk. Callison was forced at second by Taylor for the second out. Tony Curry dropped a single into left, sending Taylor to third. Pancho Herrera followed with a line drive to right on which Aaron made a nice running knee-high catch.

The victory was the Braves' 12th in 16 games with the Phillies this year.

U.S. Track Team Warms Up By Keeping Cool

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The U.S. Olympic track team warmed up for next week's Rome games Saturday night by playing it cool.

They swamped mediocre opposition from seven European countries without straining a muscle on advice of the team coaches who urged them all to regard the meet as only a training exercise.

Best performance of the night came from Glenn Davis, America's gold medal hurdler who competed in the 200-meter hurdles for the first time in three years and recorded a smashing time of 22.5 seconds in beating teammate Dick Howard.

John Thomas, the world's greatest high jumper who has consistently topped seven feet, took it easy in winning the eight-man event with a best effort of 6 feet, 9¼ inches.

Max Truex, pint-sized distance runner from Warsaw, Ind., lapped the field in the grueling 10,000 meters run in the good time of 29 minutes, 35.8 seconds.

America's champion in the hammer throw, Harold Connolly, easily won the event in a field of five but did not extend himself with a best throw of 215-10½.

SUPERSTITION DIES

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—For years racing driver Buck Baker of Spartansburg, S.C., had refused to permit his picture to be taken before a race. He felt it was bad luck.

It was only after great persuasion that he consented to pose with a beauty queen just before the start of the Myrtle Beach 100-miler. And what happened? Baker won for his first victory of the year.

"Even so," he says, "don't think for a minute I'm going to break any other superstitions, like driving a green car."

The state name Wisconsin derives from a Chippewa Indian word meaning "grassy place."

From Odysseus To Babe Ruth Hot Dog Has Unique History As All-Time Sports Favorite

During the great blizzard of December 26, 1947, one Nathan Handwerker, who was vacationing in Florida, phoned his sons and asked them if they had closed the family frankfurter stand in Coney Island.

"Closed?" they replied. "We've sold six thousand hot dogs already."

The usual steady stream of customers had managed to trudge its way through the snow to the world-renowned Nathan's Famous, Inc. which during 1957 sold six million of the six billion frankfurters devoured in the USA that year.

The noble hot dog is, of course, an American institution, but what few people realize is that the delectable tidbit, far from being an only child as meats go, comes from a sausage family of 21: Numbered among its kin are bologna; salami of various kinds; sausage of liver, ham, pork, etc.; head cheese; beerwurst; and such rare-sounding tempters as cervelat, Thuringer, and Praski. They're all sausages under the skin — or not — with skinless franks the most popular of the clan, and bologna and liver sausage as runners-up.

A recent survey of American meat-eating habits, made by the National Association of Retail Grocers, USA, disclosed that we still go for the cuts and varieties preferred by our grandparents. Tradition-bound New Englanders after 300 years still hanker for heavy beef aged 29 to 60 days; cold cuts are the rage in mining country from Pennsylvania to Milwaukee; families in California eat 25 pounds more beef yearly than those in any other state; New Orleans families consume five times as much veal as those in dairy-rich Wisconsin; Chicago and St. Paul are the champion pork munchers; and—lo, the scrumptious sausage—the Bologna Belt stretches all the way from Oklahoma City northward to Detroit.

Back to Odysseus

The sausage family can be traced back to the time of Homer's Odyssey: "As when a man near a glowing fire turns to and fro a sausage full of fat and blood, anxious to have it roasted; so to and fro Odysseus tossed and pondered how to lay hands on the shameless suitors."

Julius Caesar, in his account of the Gallic campaigns, praised a Lucanian sausage, popular among the Romans, that contained pork, bacon, chopped stone pine nuts, cumin seed, bay leaves and pepper. In later centuries the Mediterranean countries concentrated on hard sausages, like salami, that keep in warm climes. The Germans and Austrians produced softer ones. The frankfurter was first concocted at Frankfurt - am - Main around 1852.

Covering from Sheep

Some franks, like Nathan's, are covered with an old-fashioned and rather hard-to-get sheep's intestinal membrane. Now widely preferred, the skinless variety was the result of ten years research by Erwin O. Freund, founder of The Visking Company, on a fellowship at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburgh, Pa. In 1926 he produced the first satisfactory new casing—a seamless, transparent tubing of regenerated cellulose, water and glycerine. Permeable to smoke, stable in the presence of heat, water, meat juices and curing agents; non-toxic; uniform in size and length, and possessing an elasticity to stretch and shrink with the meat and adhere closely—the casing innovation was a blessing to the sausage manufacturer. Today a single machine produces as many casings in one day as were formerly provided by 70,000 sheep.

Born in St. Louis

Legend has it that the frankfurter roll was born in St. Louis in 1883, when a Bavarian sausage vendor named Anton Ludwig Feuchtwanger hit on the idea of serving each customer with a white glove to hold the wiener. Trouble was that the gloves disappeared, so Feuchtwanger decided to provide a roll as holder.

The hot dog achieved notoriety in 1925 by idling Babe Ruth in an incident that came to be known as The Stomach Ache Heard Round the World. The Babe collapsed after wolfing a snack of 12 hot dogs and eight bottles of soda pop; and the Yankees went on to mire themselves in the second division. Defenders of the frank, however, pointed out that he had been previously weakened by influenza.

For Kings, Queens

The fastidious King and Queen of England made headlines by chomping on hot dogs during a picnic lunch at the Hyde Park Estate of FDR in 1939. But probably the last mouth-watering word on the frank was pronounced in 1953 after the New York State Republican minority leader had thoughtlessly referred to a legislative bill as being "as old and wrinkled as a warmed-over Coney Island frankfurt." This fired a Democratic senator to an impassioned defense of the American frankfurter on the state senate floor.

Favorite Dish

Indignant Sen. Louis L. Friedman from Brooklyn and Coney Island proclaimed: "Other lands are represented by such dishes as pheasant under glass or shark fins, expensive delicacies meant only for the tables of the wealthy and powerful. The favorite dish of Americans, relished alike by rich and poor, male and female, ancient dodderer and diapered toddler, glamorous celebrity and obscure citizen, is the hot dog—pristine in its purity, nestling cozily in its enfolding roll, garnished with mustard, an irresistible temptation to the appetite and a morale builder unequalled in the culinary arsenals of the world."

Orioles, Bosox Split Double Bill, 8-6, 6-0

BOSTON (AP)— Incomparable Ted Williams provided the drama with a pair of three-run homers in the first game but Baltimore salvaged a double-header split, 6-0, against Boston Saturday night behind Hal Brown's masterful pitching.

Brown, a former Red Sox righthander, allowed his old mates eight singles while keeping the Orioles in the thick of the American League pennant fight, 2½ games behind pacesetting New York.

Williams, who also singled and drew his 2,000th walk, won the daylight half of the competition 8-6 by belting two tremendous drives for his 514th and 515th major league homers.

The loss in the nightcap went to rookie Earl Wilson as Baltimore ran its season domination of Boston to a 13-4 record.

Williams—who will be 42 in exactly 10 days—was the subject of four standing ovations from the afternoon crowd of 17,437. His second homer on loser Chuck Estrada's first pitch in the sixth put Boston in front to stay, 7-6. The 500-foot smash to the center field bleachers also helped Bill Monbouquette to his 13th victory.

Ron Hansen hit a three-run homer in the opener and a run-producing double in the nightcap as he enjoyed a 5-for-9 day and reached 70 RBI.

Pirates Take 10-7 Tilt From Cininnati Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates scored six runs in the second inning Saturday and led 8-0 in the fourth but still had to hang on desperately to beat the Cincinnati Reds 10-7 in a free-swinging slugfest.

It was Elroy Face who came on again to stifle the Reds after the Cincinnatians had cut the Pittsburgh lead to three runs.

Face, the last of three Pittsburgh pitchers, was credited with the victory while young Jim Maloney was the loser.

Gordon Coleman and Gus Bell had home runs for the Reds while Don Hoak hit one out of the park for the Pirates.

In that big second inning Maloney was almost out of trouble with only one run scored. A walk and singles by Roberto Clemente and Smoky Burgess were followed by a run-scoring double play on Hoak's grounder. Singles by Cheney and Bill Virdon drove in two more runs, however.

Coleman drove in three runs with a home run in the fourth.

The Bucs came right back with two more, one of them on Hoak's home run but the Reds got three in their half.

The Reds got another in the seventh but Face came on to stop them the rest of the way.

Rookie Bruce, Tigers Slay Indians, 4-2

DETROIT (AP) — Bob Bruce, Detroit's late-blooming rookie pitcher, hurled the Tigers to a 4-2 triumph over Cleveland Saturday, although he required ninth inning help from Hank Aguirre.

Aguirre came on after Tito Francona led off the inning with his 10th home run. Aguirre allowed a single by Mike de la Hoz, but got Red Wilson to hit into a double-play and whizzed a third strike past John Romano.

The victory was Detroit's fourth in succession and the Tigers' seventh in eight starts.

The Tigers scored all their runs off starter Barry Latman, getting single runs in the second, third, fourth and fifth innings.

Francona drove in both Cleveland runs. Two errors by the Detroit infield and Francona's single produced one in the second and his upper deck drive in the ninth accounted for the other.

Fraser, Emerson Favorites For L.T.A. Doubles

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson, the cat quick, skillful Australians, rank as top heavy favorites to repeat their 1959 victory in the 80th playing of the U.S. L.T.A. National Doubles Tournament.

The Aussies drew the top foreign seed—almost an assurance of victory—for the eight day tourney that starts Sunday on the grass courts at the Longwood Cricket Club. Since 1948 foreigners have failed to win only twice.

Fraser, 26, and Emerson, 23, are odds on favorites to keep the string going. They appear to have lost nothing, and gained in experience and finesse, since Fraser blended his left handed talent with Emerson's speed for a masterful 3-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5 triumph over Alex Olmedo and Earl Buchholz in last year's finals.

BRUCE DEVLIN WINS AUSTRALIAN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Bruce Devlin won the Australian Open Golf Championship Saturday, the first amateur to do so since 1939. His triumph also clinched a place for him on the Australian team to defend the Eisenhower Trophy at Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 28-Oct. 1.

Devlin, who won the Eisenhower individual honors at St. Andrews two years ago, shot 282 although he zoomed to 75 Saturday after three previous rounds of 69. Ted Ball, Australian amateur champ, was second with 283.

R. B. Meitus' King Grain, a 16-to-1 shot, was second, about one length behind the winner. Third in the field of eight was Hasty House Farms' Martini II.

One-Eyed King, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, packing 118 pounds, covered the mile and three-sixteenths over Arlington Park's rain-softened turf course in 1:58 3-5.

7,000 Actors Set For Performance

By EUGENE LEVIN

ROME (AP) — This coming week the curtain goes up on the greatest sports spectacle the world has ever seen — the 17th Olympic games.

The stage is set. Ancient Rome has taken on a new look with modernistic concrete stadiums and graceful sports palaces, all adorned with the colorful banners of the world's nations.

The actors are here—more than 7,000 athletes from 87 countries. It's the biggest cast the Olympic games have ever had.

A vast audience is already present. Tens of thousands of fans have jammed into every hotel, every boarding house, eagerly awaiting the big show.

It gets under way Thursday, with the traditional opening ceremony complete with Olympic torch and parade of athletes, and ends Sept. 11.

A Ceylonese army corporal, Linus Diaz, who learned to run by mail, will finally come up against some of the track greats who met his written requests and sent him instructions.

Tiny Afghanistan, with its first Olympic track and field team, will pin its hopes on sturdy mountain tribesmen who learned to hurdle by jumping over wooden crates on dusty caravan trails.

Russians, schooled and conditioned in sports from childhood, will defend the unofficial team laurels they won at the 1956 Olympics in Melbourne.

Husky young Americans, keen and sharp, will be out to reassert U.S. dominance at the games.

Italy, which turned down the 1908 Olympic games because it couldn't afford to pay for them, has shelled out a whopping 32 million dollars to build its 1960 Olympic plant.

Benito Mussolini, Italy's Fascist dictator, dreamed of staging the Olympic games. He started building an Olympic stadium. World War II halted construction. Republican Italy finished it — and went a lot further.

The Olympic stadium, with 100,000 capacity, is the main sports site. But these other new stadiums have also been built:

An Olympic velodrome, for bicycle events, seating 20,000.

A little sports palace, for basketball, boxing and wrestling, seating 3,500.

A big sports palace, also for basketball and boxing, seating 15,000.

The Flaminio Stadium, for soccer, capacity 50,000.

Swimming pools, practice fields and several existing sports facilities have all been pressed into service, making all Rome a vast sports center.

Two of the city's ancient ruins —the basilica of Maxentius and the baths of Caracala dating back 1,700 years—will be used for the Olympic wrestling and gymnastic events.

Marathon runners on Sept. 10 —closing date of the games—will race along the famous Appian Way.

Rowing and canoeing events will be held on Lake Albano, 15 miles south of Rome. Yachting will be staged in the Gulf of Naples, more than 100 miles away.

But Rome is the heart of the Olympics.

It has the main stadiums and it has the Olympic village, where the thousands of athletes have been housed in bright new three-story apartment buildings perched on concrete stilts over green lawns.

The small army of newsmen, 1,200 reporters and 300 photographers, are being housed in a Roman Catholic institution.

Olympic sport fans are expected to number more than 100,000 on any single day, and perhaps a million in all.

The games have drastically upset Roman life.

Government workers by the thousands must rise two hours earlier than usual to get to their jobs. Authorities ordered the offices to open earlier, and close in the afternoon, so that the city's big white collar population would be out of the way in the hours when the Olympic traffic crush is expected.

The city is festive. Flags of all participating countries fly from dozens of flagpoles throughout the city.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Regardless of where they finish, the Orioles have spun by far the most exciting baseball record this year.

Reading and listening to what they say about the Baltimore club you would suspect that Paul Richards hasn't the slightest idea in the spring about who would deploy.

But Richards is first to disclaim the role of a miracle worker.

"This outfit is no pig-in-a-poke job," said the Old Boy Wonder of Waxahachie, one foot on the dugout step and both eyes on Chuck Estrada warming up at Yankee Stadium.

"We knew about the young fellows who made this club. That's why we let go of older players like Billy Gardner and Chico Carrasquel."

"This might well be called the Vancouver Victory Party," the baseball writer suggested. The entire infield outside of first base and the pitchers, Estrada and Wes Stock, were developed by the Vancouver club of the Pacific Coast League.

"Let us say that the British Columbia Boys didn't hurt us any," smiled Richards, who is taking dead aim at all the marbles.

* * *

THE VANCOUVER INFIELDERS are Ronnie Hansen and Brooks Robinson, forming what is perhaps the slickest left side of the infield in baseball, and Marv Breeding, the journeyman second baseman.

"Why is anyone surprised about this club?" cut in Gus Triandos, the big catcher. "We start with the finest pitching in the game Rounding out the infield is Jim Gentile, leading the club in home runs and runs-batted-in.

"The catching isn't half bad, if I do say it myself, and among the outfielders, Gene Woodling is one of the truly great hitters. Dave Nicholson has the long ball now and going to stick out one of these days.

"Richards is a master at platooning our outfielders, and all of them aren't exactly All-American outs. You'd hardly put Jackie Brandt, Gene Stephens and Al Pilarcik in that category.

"We have a bench for the first time since I was traded to Baltimore five years ago.

"Robinson and Hansen have carried the club thus far. Now if one or two others, soy Jim Gentile and myself, hit in the stretch, we could take it all."

* * *

THERE IS A TOUCH OF the old, old Orioles in this latest edition. A disk operation nearly ended the priceless Hansen's career before it had hardly started, kept him on the disabled list for two years.

A foul tip struck Triandos on the back of his throwing hand early in August of last year. That sidelined the San Francisco Greek for three weeks.

Triandos believed the off-season rest would heal everything, but it didn't A bursa sac formed around a nerve in his thumb this spring, requiring 30 stitches and costing him five weeks of playing time.

Only now is Triandos swinging the bat freely again, but he has yet to relocate the home run range.

An infection followed a blister on the index finger of Clint Courtney's throwing hand which is still taped, but Scrapiron hit both kinds of pitching and the club won with him doing all the catching.

There isn't the slightest chance of Paul Richards having to bench any member of this Baltimore squad for failing to run out a ball hit anywhere.

Great Athlete's Fate Rests On Olympic Policy Wrangle

ROME (AP) — The fate of one of the world's great all around athletes hung in the balance today as factions within the International Olympic Committee wrangled over the name Nationalist China will use in the 1960 games.

The athlete is Yang Chuan-kwang, better known as Yang.

He will compete here in the decathlon at the Olympic games opening Aug. 25 if his nation agrees to enter under the name laid down by the IOC, which would be Taiwan.

There may be a ruckus at the full IOC meeting Monday over what to call Nationalist China, but indications were strong today that Taiwan is the name the IOC will insist on. The Nationalists competed as Taiwan in the pre-Olympic basketball tournament at Bologna, but under protest.

Just how good is Yang? Bob Mathias, who won the decathlon for the United States in 1948 and 1952, thinks he can win here.

When Rafer Johnson broke the world record of 8,357 points held by Russia's Vassily Kuznetsov with a mark of 8,683, Yang did 8,426, also over the record. But he failed miserably in the tenth and his best event, the 1,500 meters, because of an injured leg.

If Nationalist China under whatever name competes in these games, Yang gets his great chance. If there is a walkout, Yang's hopes will be dashed.

Cubs Smash Giant Winning Streak, 9-5

CHICAGO (AP) — George Altman drove in five runs with a double and a three-run homer Saturday, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 9-5 victory which smashed a four-game San Francisco winning streak.

Altman doubled home a pair of runs in the third inning and hit his ninth homer in the fourth, helping the Cubs wipe out a four-run deficit.

Southpaw Seth Morehead, taking over for starter Moe Drabowsky, was credited with his second victory against seven defeats.

The Giants piled up an early 4-0 lead in the first three innings but Sad Sam Jones, a 13-game winner, couldn't hold it.

The Cubs started Jones on the way to his 14th defeat with three runs in the third. Singles by Elvin Tappe and Bob Will and a walk to Richie Ashburn loaded the sacks. One run scored when Ernie Banks bounced into a force play before Altman doubled in the other two.

Altman's three-run homer capped a five-run, fourth inning rally which also saw Ashburn single home a pair of runs.

Tompion Comes In Like Champ, Takes Travers'

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Coming on in a manner befitting an equine champion, C. V. Whitney's Tompion made a show of the 91st and richest, $83,100, running of the Travers Saturday, oldest race in this country for 3-year-olds.

The sturdy, swift-running son of Tom Fool left his field of seven rivals stranded through the stretch, as he crossed the wire with a margin of six big lengths under Bill Hartack.

Reginald N. Webster's Count Amber, who set the pace for a mile, was no match for the thundering leader, but had scant difficulty taking second by four lengths from Edward Seinfeld's sluggish-moving Don Rickles.

Tompion's share of the $83,100 pot was $53,165. He covered the mile and a quarter in 2:03 2-5, fastest Travers since Lights Up scored in 2:03 in 1950.

Tompion was a staunch favorite and paid $3.80, $3.20 and $2.50.

The crowd for the final day of racing at Monmouth Park totaled 43,258, breaking the track's record of 42,867 that had stood since Aug. 8, 1953.

Emergency Measures

Rome Gives Up Siesta During Olympic Games

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROME (AP) — Ancient Rome today cast aside her traditional cloak of casualness—even the siesta—and officially braced herself for the seventeenth Olympic Games, opening Thursday.

While hundreds of additional athletes poured into the orange brick structures of Olympic Village, increasing the population there to almost 3,000, the city fathers threw the switch on a series of emergency measures for the duration of the giant sports festival.

Downtown parking was limited to one hour. Most shops and stores stayed open until 11 p.m. Government offices operated only between 10 and 11:30 a.m. And one of this city's most attractive traditions—the 1 to 4 p.m. lunch hour or siesta — was abandoned until the closing curtain Sept. 11.

The city's bustling Via Veneto —the Italian Champs De Elysees where sidewalk sitting and promenading lasts until the early hours of morning—was closed to traffic and turned into a gigantic midtown garden party.

Chairs, tables and umbrellas were moved into the streets to make more room for the anticipated gaiety of invading tourists.

Australia's hardened suntanned swimmers took their first dip in the olympic training pool and some of them, including John Konrads, complained of the streamlined training program.

"We should have had three more weeks of drills at home," the 18-year-old holder of six free-style records said. "Also, we should have been here earlier, but maybe everything will work out okay."

The strongest American team ever sent to the games began adjusting itself to the humidity of the city and overall appeared in tiptop shape. "From top to bottom this is our greatest squad ever," said Kenneth (Tug- Wilson, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, "I anticipate a wonderful showing."

Only the track and field athletes and the basketball team, performing in Switzerland over the weekend, still are absent.

The Russian squad was completed with the arrival of another planeload, numbering 64 men and women track performers plus officials. Others coming in included 90 Indonesians and representatives of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, the United Arab Republic, Holland, Peru, Tunisia, Turkey, Britain and France.

The executive committee of the International Olympic Committee completed its sessions and prepared a report for the general IOC meeting Monday. The report deals mainly with political problems, particularly issues involving Nationalist and Communist China.

Pale Hose Maintain Pace With 3-0 Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Herb Score pitched Chicago to a 3-0 two-hit victory over the Kansas City Athletics Saturday and the White Sox kept their pace 1 1/2 games behind the league-leading New York Yankees.

Luis Aparicio drove in Jim Landis with the first run in the eighth inning. The Sox added two runs in the ninth inning when Gene Freese bunted safely against reliever Ken Johnson, stole second and scored in front of Al Smith, who hit his 12th home run, a drive over the left field fence.

Don Larsen went out for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning after giving up what proved the winning run. He yielded six hits, walked one and struck out four batters.

A pair of walks in the opening inning with only one out gave Score his first test. He got Dick Williams on a fly to right field and Norm Siebern fouled out. Then he pitched perfect baseball through the fifth.

Larsen was almost as good. He gave up the first hit, a double by Roy Sievers in the fourth, and a bunt single to Freese in the fifth. Landis also got a double in that inning but the Sox couldn't score because Carey had engineered a double play to clean the sacks.

Dodgers Stage 9th Frame Rally To Sink Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An inning away from their second straight 1-0 defeat, the Los Angeles Dodgers came to life on Gil Hodges' two-run ninth-inning double Saturday to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1, and slip past them into third place in the National League.

Until the ninth the Redbirds and lefty Curt Simmons had the game won on rookie Charley James' first major league homer, a first-inning drive off southpaw Danny McDevitt.

Then in the ninth Junior Gilliam led off with a single to center and raced to third as Tommy Davis singled to right.

The veteran Hodges followed with a line drive which was fair by less than a foot down the right field line, scoring Gilliam and the fleet Davis.

St. Louis threatened briefly in the ninth when Moose Moryn opened with a single but Larry Sherry choked off the rally to preserve his 12th victory in 20 decisions. Simmons now is 4-3.

WILLIAMS JOINS RUTH IN MAJOR RECORD

BOSTON (AP)—Boston slugger Ted Williams Saturday joined the late Babe Ruth as the only major league baseball player ever to receive 2,000 or more walks.

Williams drew his 2,000th base on balls from Baltimore pitcher Chuck Estrada in the first inning of the afternoon half of a doubleheader.

Ted got his walk in his 2,260th game. Ruth had 2,056 walks in 2,503 games over 22 years, all but 20 of the walks in the American League.

The New York Rangers will open the National Hockey League season on Oct. 5 at Madison Square Garden, the first time they have opened at home since their debut in 1926.

Senators Blow Lead, Give Yanks 9-5 Triumph

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two ninth-inning errors by Washington's Joe Valdivielso blew a shutout victory for Pedro Ramos and New York went on to beat the Senators 9-5 in 11 innings Saturday.

After seeing their 2-0 lead turned into a 2-5 deficit in the disastrous ninth, the Senators fought back in the bottom of the ninth to tie it at 5-5. But Moose Skowron's 23rd homer with Mickey Mantle aboard in the 11th put the Yanks ahead again and they added two more for good measure.

This tagged reliever Chuck Stobbs with his fifth defeat against eight victories and gave the decision to Eli Grba, also in relief.

The Senators seemed to have a 2-0 victory wrapped up behind Ramos with two Yankees out and nobody on in the ninth. Then Yogi Berra beat out a hit to second base and took third on Mantle's single to center. When Skowron hit an easy grounder toward short, the game-ending out seemed to be in the making.

However, shortstop Valdivielso fumbled the ball for an error, Berra scoring and Mantle sprinting to third. Elston Howard stroked a game-tying double to left, Skowron stopping at third. Then, Valdivielso, handling the relay, threw wild past catcher Battey and Skowron scored.

INDIANAPOLIS TRIO NOT HEP ON 'THAT SHAVE CRAZE STUFF'

ROME (AP)—The shave craze among the swimming set hasn't affected the formidable Indianapolis threesome of George Breen, Alan Somers and Mike Troy.

"We don't go for that stuff," said Breen, the brawny, blond freestyle veteran. "I think it's purely psychological."

They may not go for it, but most of the other swimmers are giving it a try.

The Australians started it all in 1956. They shaved their legs and the hairier ones had the fuzz skimmed off their chests and backs. Since the Australians cleaned up in the games at Melbourne, swimmers in the United States followed suit.

AL Oddities—Wynn Below Par, Washington's Wammy

By ED WILKS

Two of the oddities of this American League season are the fact that Early Wynn has been above .500 only once since May, and Washington's whammy on the New York Yankees.

Put them together, and the Chicago White Sox are within 1½ games of the first place Yanks again.

Wynn, the tough right hander who has won more games than any other active pitcher in the AL, edged the defending champion Sox a bit closer Friday night with a seven hit, 10-0 breeze at Kansas City. That gave Wynn a 9-8 record and his 280th victory, but it's the first time since May 20, when he had a 2-1 record, that he's been clear of the break even mark.

Washington made it three straight over the Yankees with a 4-2 decision on the five hit pitching of Camilo Pascual and a two run, two out single by Bob Allison in the eighth inning. It was the Senators' ninth victory in 15 games with New York this season.

Detroit defeated Cleveland 5-3 in the only other game played. Baltimore and Boston were idled by fog.

In the National League, Pittsburgh retained a 7½ game lead despite a 4-3 defeat at Cincinnati. Second place Milwaukee lost 3-2 to Philadelphia. St. Louis beat Los Angeles 1-0, and San Francisco defeated the Chicago Cubs 2-1.

The Senators came from behind and took a 2-1 lead on Bob Lemon's 28th home run and Harmon Killebrew's 20th, then broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth after reliever Ralph Terry almost worked out of a jam. With the bases loaded on two walks and a single by Lennie Green, Terry got Lemon to hit into a force out at the plate, then retired Rene Bertoia on a pop up before Allison broke it up.

The Tigers made it four out of five against the Indians since the two clubs swapped managers when Frank Bolling, hitless in 16 at bats, walloped a tie breaking, three-run homer in the sixth inning.

Houston To Build $15 Million Sports Arena

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County officials Saturday announced plans to build a 15 million dollar sports center that is to include a 45,000 seat dome covered baseball stadium.

Holders of the Houston franchise in the defunct Continental Baseball League also announced they are prepared to lease the center for 30 years.

Under current plans, all events in the stadium would be played indoors beneath a 230 foot dome. The stadium would seat 50,000 for football.

Construction of the stadium is expected to begin next January on a 269 acre tract five miles south of downtown Houston. Construction would require 12 months.

Sorenson Felt Sure She Was Going To Win

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—There was no doubt in the mind of Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis., that she could win the National Junior Girls Golf Championship over the Oaks Country Club course.

The 17 year old shotmaker did exactly that with a 2 and 1 decision over Sharon Fladoos of Dubuque, Iowa, in the 18 hole final match Friday.

A member of the club walked up to the attractive blonde when she was practicing and asked: "How are you hitting them?"

"Good enough to win," was the reply.

The Wisconsin lass battled her way through 109 holes to the title with a 10 over par effort over a course that played a 6,272 yards and a par of 39-38—77.

Capsule Snatcher's Mother Thrilled By Historic Flight

HONOLULU (AP) — The jubilant U. S. Air Force Saturday celebrated history's first aerial catch of a capsule ejected from an orbiting satellite — bringing man's journey into space a giant step closer. The capsule, snared by a dangling device which hooked into its parachute shrouds, was plucked from the sky 8,500 feet over the Pacific Friday by a C119 Flying Boxcar after its ejection from Discoverer XIV over Alaska.

Packed with instruments and equipment designed to speed development of space spy and missile warning satellites, the 85 pound capsule and three of the crew from the catch plane were sped to the U. S. mainland after a short stopover in Hawaii. A plane brought the gold colored capsule from Hawaii to the Lockheed laboratory at Sunnyvale, Calif., for scientific analysis before it continues on to Washington.

With it went Capt. Harold E. Mitchell, 35, Bloomington, Ill., the catch plane's commander, wearing his newly bestowed Distinguished Flying Cross.

In Greenfield

Mrs. Eleanor Mitchell of Greenfield, mother of the man who commanded a C119 Flying Boxcar which caught a returning space capsule out of the wild blue yonder on the fly, was elated when she learned of the historic "first" Friday night.

Her son, Capt. Harold E. Mitchell, 35, commanded the specially equipped plane which made the dramatic catch. Told of the news, Mrs. Mitchell said:

"Oh, that's wonderful, I didn't know that. Isn't it terrific. I just got a letter from Harold's wife and she said they were 24 miles from it last week."

Capt. Harold E. Mitchell

Mrs. Mitchell said she returned home two weeks ago after spending a month with her son and his family. She said her son built model airplanes as a child and first entered the Air Force in 1943.

During Winter

During the winter months Mrs. Mitchell is house mother to 60 girls in the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority House at University of Kansas at Lawrence, but still calls Greenfield her "home."

The Mitchell family moved to Greenfield from Bloomington in 1927, when Capt. Mitchell was three years old.

Young Mitchell attended Greenfield schools and graduated from high school in 1943. He joined the Air Corps Cadets program and was a bombardier on a WWII B-17 in the European campaign for six months before the end of the war.

Mitchell then returned to civilian life and entered Kansas State University where he was rated the top R.O.T.C. officer. After three years he accepted a commission in the Air Force and then received his wings in heavy bomber at Randolph Field.

Father Is Dead

Mitchell's father, a former Metropolitan Life Insurance Company representative, is dead. Mrs. Mitchell is the former Eleanor Ann Haven and a native of Greenfield.

Captain Mitchell was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his role in the feat. The crewmen were awarded the Air Medal.

At a news conference at Hickman Air Force Base, Honolulu, Mitchell confided, "I was so nervous I could hardly handle it," referring to the recovered capsule.

As the capsule floated down prior to the catch of a dangling hook into the parachute shrouds, Mitchell pleaded:

"For gosh sakes, don't hurt it."

When he finally relaxed, back at Hickman, he agreed:

"The flight was pretty routine otherwise."

"It feels real fine after two years of training and trying for so long. We were fortunate that we were there at that time."

Student To Be Guest

Miss Eugenia Riera, International Farm Youth Exchange person, sent by the National R. H. Club Foundation of Washington, D.C. will arrive in Winchester around noon on Wednesday accompanied by Miss Hazel Graves, Morgan-Scott home adviser. Miss Riera is a home demonstration agent from Caracas, Venezuela. She has studied home economics Extension for two years and has lived on a 150 acre farm in her native country. Her native language is Spanish but she has been tutored in English. Miss Riera is presently staying at the farm of Robert L. Summers and family near New Berlin.

Upon their arrival in Winchester Miss Reira will be presented with a check by Miss Beverly Welsh, 4-H Federation treasurer, complimentary of the 4-H Federation and the Home Bureau units, for one dollar per day for her stay in Scott County to be used as spending money.

The group will have lunch and meet the host family, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Flynn, with whom Miss Reira will reside as a guest until Sept. 14. She will then go to Montgomery County and following that to Jefferson County which will conclude her stay in the United States.

Miss Riera arrived in the States on April 27 in Miami, Fla. From there she was taken to Washington, D.C. to the National 4-H Club Foundation for orientation. Her first visits to farm families in the United States was in the state of Wyoming, staying there from May 12 to July 25. From there she went to the University of Missouri for a brief stay and then to Urbana, Ill., and she has been with Illinois farm families since that time.

Miss Riera, like the other International Farm Youth Exchangees, are promoting good will and understanding of people in other nations and other countries. She is seeing how the American people live to get a better understanding of their way of life and in turn will pass that on to her own people.

This project was started in 1948 and over 60 countries have participated in the exchange with the United States. The project is dedicated in the belief that understanding people is the foundation to world peace. The exchangees are between the ages of 20 and 30, have a secondary school education, and live from four to six months in the different countries. The program is conducted by local organizations or by the respective governments. In the United States the National 4-H Clubs Foundation, a non-governmental educational organization, the extension service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the land grant colleges conduct the program.

It is hoped that Miss Reira will have an opportunity to visit with as many people in the county as possible during her brief stay here and that it will be possible for her to talk to several of the organizations in the community and tell them of her native country, Venezuela.

Honors For Veteran Merchant

When an individual reaches the 50th milestone it is an occasion for celebration. When a business firm rounds out a half century of service, the event is even more deserving of recognition. It is the good fortune of the Lukeman Clothing Store, East Side Square, to reach its golden anniversary and to have its founder, Mr. J. Clarence Lukeman, still actively at the helm.

Many citizens of Jacksonville and community will find pleasure in greeting Mr. Lukeman at open house from 7 to 9 o'clock Monday evening. These friends realize that "Fifty Year Men" are not numerous in the modern business world. Those on the job are rugged individualists, who have witnessed vast changes in merchandising methods, and adjusted their business to conform with the changing times.

Mr. Lukeman, like other veteran merchants, has scored an illustrious victory in piloting a firm from 1910, when when "going into business" was a rather simple matter, to 1960 with its complex problems and methods that challenge all types of commercial endeavor.

J. Clarence Lukeman has reason to be extremely proud of his accomplishment. He has shot square with his patrons. He has furnished gainful employment for a long line of employees, some of whom have learned the business and gone on to ownerships of stores. He has exhibited a fine sense of civic responsibility during all his half century of business, vigorously supporting movements for the good of the city and its business men.

We Must Keep Order

One of the great contradictions of this age is found in the attitude of the romantic liberals toward the use of authority.

By and large they favor reliance upon a strong central authority—in our case the federal government — to achieve many major purposes. They look to Washington for almost everything.

At the same time, however, they exhibit a fine distrust of particular individuals who show a talent for the exercise of authority. There is a feeling that power individually exercised is somehow "ruthless" and certainly "anti-democratic."

In the romantic mind, this suspicion runs through the whole fabric of life. The cry "fascist methods" goes up wherever police dare to act upon the notion that their job is to keep order, enforce law, and protect innocent people from society's predators.

The romantics frown upon school officials and parents who believe that enforcing discipline is good for the nation's youngsters. The idea, it seems, is to let them "express themselves naturally," even if, as in New York City, this means letting them destroy $500,000 worth of school property in a single year.

When a youngster assaults a man on the street, the romantic's prime concern is: "Let's not be too hasty or too rough now. This kid had a bad background." His broken home appears of more consequence than the victim's broken head.

At no level of our society should we fear the full application of authority in support of orderly, peaceful relations among men. Democracy is not the abdication of authority. It is merely a system which gives the people a controlling voice in the selection of those who shall use it.

Any who abuse their power we can remove. But we do not place them in positions of trust so that they may acquiesce in disorder, violence, or other depredation against society. To the extent that they do so, they are conniving at the failure of democracy.

The wise use of power is a matter requiring great skill and care. But authority exists to be used. There is no wisdom in allowing it to crumble in disuse. That, truly, prepares the way for the totalitarianism the romantic liberals profess to fear.

Frigid But Warm

Let's hope that the recent Antarctica peace treaty is the harbinger of a better era to come and that it will mean more than just making the world safe for penguins. It's interesting, however, to note that this minor thaw in the cold war had to do with an area that's perpetually frozen. In the so-called "temperate" zones, we just can't seem to get along with one another.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — As most everyone knows, movies are getting sexier than ever. Producer Albert Zugsmith tells why:

"Hollywood cannot start a trend —only follow it. You can't be ahead of the times here—only behind it."

Zugsmith has made his share of sex pictures—"Written on the Wind," "Sex Kittens Go to College," "College Confidential," etc.

"You know why?" he asks. "The first one made money. I wanted to change pace, but every time I'd suggest a property like 'Gulliver's Travels,' the front office would say: 'Make a picture like your last one.'"

Zugsmith finally found a way to get around the front office.

"I have a young son who reads the comic strip 'Dondi,' and he asked me why I didn't make a movie about it.

" 'Dondi' is a little boy, and a movie about him is about as sexless a story as there is. But I think it's the kind of picture that families want to see."

Zugsmith differs from most Hollywood producers. He was a millionaire before he ever hit this town. He began as a police reporter on the Atlantic City (N.J.) World and rose to publisher. Later he made a fortune buying and selling newspapers, radio stations and TV stations.

"I got tired of arguing with front offices of studios in this town, so I decided to buy stock in Allied Artists."

At the moment he is the largest single stockholder of the studio.

"I am, in effect, my own front office," he says. "That's why I'm making 'Dondi.' "

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A major studio invited high fashion model Isabella Albonico from New York for tests and auditions for a movie contract. Miss Albonico, a native of Florence, Italy, once was Dior's top model in Paris. Of a movie career, she says:

"We agree on everything but money. In my business, I am star. Out here I would have to start at the bottom and be paid accordingly. I don't know yet if I want to be an actress. There are too many reasons against it."

The reasons add up to $102,000, what she earned last year posing for magazine covers.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dodie Stevens, the 14-year-old singer whose "Pink Shoe Laces" was a million seller, has a different set of movie idols than most teenagers.

"I think Eric Linden is dreamy. I also like Turhan Bey. And Francis Lederer is so handsome.

"But my all-time favorites are Errol Flynn, Warren William, John Garfield and Tyrone Power."

Dodie, so busy with her own career, only has time for the late, late show.

The old movie watching has paid off in her own career. She recently got Dot Records to let her make an album of songs she had heard "a child star" sing.

The album is "Over the Rainbow," featuring Judy Garland songs.

Unions Map Fight Against Railroads' Strike Insurance

By PETER EDSON
Written For NEA

WASHINGTON —(NEA) — A showdown on whether employers have the right to take out insurance to protect themselves against financial losses caused by strikes is shaping up an an aftermath of the recently settled Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen's strike against Long Island Railroad in New York.

This is the first major case in which Imperial Insurance Co., Ltd., Nassau, Bahamas, paid strike benefits to an American railroad shut down by a work stoppage. There was an earlier payment to a small Illinois railroad, but it is not considered a good test case.

Daniel P. Loomis, president of the 300 member Association of American Railroads, announced just a year ago that "practically the entire industry" had signed up for a service-interruption insurance policy.

In The Long Island Strike, BRT President W. P. Kennedy charges that a plane flew daily from Nassau to New York. It brought the railroad 50 thousand dollars every day the strike lasted.

This represented the railroad's daily average fixed cost—taxes, interest on indebetedness, pension fund payments and payroll costs for managerial employees necessary for continued operation. Total insurance benefits thus received would be $1,350,000.

BRT negotiators maintain that while the strike was in progress, management representatives told them in effect that, "with 50 thousand dollars a day coming in, we're making as much as we would if we settled—so why settle?"

Railway Labor Executive Assn., meeting in Washington after the strike was settled, turned the case over to their counsel for further study. The association represents 23 railroad brotherhoods and other unions in the industry. It will meet here again Sept. 28 for a report and further consideration.

If counsel recommends action, it is probable that suit will be brought against the carriers to disband their strike insurance plan as a violation of the Interstate Commerce Act. It will also be challenged as a business expense on which the railroads can claim an income tax deduction.

If counsel recommends that chance of winning such a suit against the railroads is small, it is probabzle that the railway labor unions will bring pressure on Congres to pass a new law next year, barring strike insurance for employers as contrary to the public interest in that it delays strike settlements.

Details Of The American railroads' contract with Imperial Insurance so far announced indicate that the initial premium was 1 per cent of each carrier's annual fixed cost. The roads pay an additional $150,000 a year as administrative costs. But premiums are to be adjusted annually, based on experience.

G. E. Leighty, chairman of Railway Labor Executives, is authority for the statement there are now 60 million dollars "in the pot."

This could be an important factor if negotiations for wage increase and changes in featherbedding rules, which have been going on for more than a year, should break down and end in a strike.

Under The Contract, no benefits are to be paid for more than a year. Benefits will not be paid if more than half the industry is struck. No benefits will be paid in excess of premiums paid in. Benefits are to be paid only for work stoppages that violate provisions of the Railway Labor Act or the recommendations of a Presidential Emergency Board.

Since unions pay benefits to their striking members and since strikers may also collect unemployment insurance, employers contend that they, too, should be entitled to insurance. Chairman Leighty argues that union benefits and unemployment insurance are authorized by the Railway Labor Act, while employers' insurance is not.

AAR President Loomis points out, however, that payments to railroad employes in a lawful strike come from a fund to which the railroad companies are sole contributors. The railroads are the only industry in which this is the case.

Booklet Has Advice for Victims of Arthritis

BY MARIE DAERR

"Arthritis patients must realize that a home care program may mean the difference between recovery with good joint function and recovery with burned-out, crippled joints."

So says a facts-packed booklet, "Home Care in Arthritis," describing home therapy which an arthritic may follow under supervision of doctor or physical therapist and, in the case of some exercises, with the help of a visiting nurse or a member of the family who has had some special instruction.

The pamphlet is available free from the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, 10 Columbus Circle, New York 19, N. Y.

Maintaining motion in a joint is the major aim of a rest-and-exercise program for victims of rheumatoid arthritis.

To rest a joint most efficiently, keep it as straight as possible," the booklet advises. "Remember that lying in bed with fingers, wrists, elbows and knees bent—although it may seem temporarily more comfortable—leads to more disability."

Putting a small sandbag or folded towel under upper arm and wrist, while lying on one's back in bed, will keep elbow and wrist straight. A folded towel placed under the ankle will straighten the knee.

It is even possible to design a light plaster or aluminum gutter splint for wear at intervals to hold fingers and hands straight.

"Feet generally tend to turn out when one is lying on his back," the booklet continues. "This strains the knee. Sandbags placed against the outside of the feet remove this strain."

Bed boards will give proper support, keep the spine in better position and prevent hip joints from bending when the patient is on his back.

Raising the bed by putting blocks under its legs will make it easier for the patient to get in and out of it.

Most chairs should be raised three to four inches by blocks. Chair seat should be flat and the back should be broad, high and uncurved, according to the publication.

Much pain can be prevented by maintaining good posture and avoiding fatigue, the booklet states.

Another quotation: "Patients must not forget that doing one thing for too long, whether it be sitting in a chair or walking or doing some piece of work, will eventually produce fatigue, and that it will rest them to change to something else.

"Automobile rides are often too long for arthritis patients. Sitting through a double-feature movie, which many a patient does, becomes very tiring because he is unable to change his position."

Q—My husband has worked under social security as a salesman. He now is partly disabled. He is 53. Will he be able to draw any social security benefits?—Mrs. R. S.

A—It is possible your husband may qualify for disability benefits, paid to people 50 or over who have a disability so severe it makes them unable to "engage in any substantial gainful activity." I suggest you write for the Social Security booklet, "If You Become Disabled." It is available for 10 cents from: Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing ffice, Washington 25, D. C. For regular social security payments, your husband would need 40 quarters.

Q—My husband will be 50 next March. He has been ill and, according to the doctor, won't be able to work again. Please give me full particulars on disability payments.—M.W.

A—Send for the booklet I recommend in the answer above.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — At this point in the presidential campaign, just a few weeks old, the Democrats are doing the catching. The Republicans have put them on the defensive, or tried to, in one way or another.

Just this week a Gallup Poll showed Vice President Richard M. Nixon leading Sen. John F. Kennedy in the presidential race by 50 to 44 per cent of the voters questioned, with 6 per cent undecided.

This preference may switch around once the present session of Congress ends—perhaps around Labor Day — and the campaign starts in earnest. But, coming so early, the poll gives the Democrast cause for concern.

This session of Congress, where Democrats overwhelmingly outnumber Republicans, was supposed to last three or four weeks. The Senate has been in session almost two weeks with little solid accomplishment except a minimum wage bill passed Thursday night.

But the Republicans have been working overtime to use this session to embarrass the Democrats. For instance: The Democratic platform promises big strides in civil rights. The Republicans have challenged the Democrats to make good now.

A civil rights fight by Southern Democrats could stretch this session well beyond Labor Day and even ruin chances for any other legislation. Kennedy and his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, sidetracked the civil rights bills.

This gave the Republicans a chance to wrap the "look-who's-talking" complaint around the Democrats' necks. And they got another chance to do the same when President Eisenhower challenged the Democrats to pass a 22-point program he offered.

It would have been impossible for Congress to tackle such a program in such a short period—if Congress' usual tardy performance on legislation is a criterion — but when the Democrats brushed this aside, the Republicans had fresh ammunition.

The Democratic platform promised medical care for the aged on a wide scale and under the Social Security program. But Kennedy and Johnson, who backed this idea ran into a bottleneck within their own party.

Conservative Democrats on the Senate Finance Committee teamed up with conservative Republicans to urge a much narrower medical care arrangement. So on this also, in the short session, the Democrats may not be able to make good on the platform.

All week, led by Kennedy, Democrats, or rather just some of them, have pushed for an increase from $1 to $1.25 in the minimum wage, while bringing many more millions of people under its protection.

The Democratic platform promised this, too. But in the face of strong opposition from both Republicans and members of his own party, Kennedy had to yield ground on the number of new workers he wanted covered in order to win passage of the bill. And the House bill doesn't go nearly so far.

While Nixon has managed to slip off to Maine and North Carolina to make speeches, Kennedy, compelled to stay close to the Senate, has mostly been mending fences. He went to see Eleanor Roosevelt who was against his nomination. Soon he'll visit former President Truman who also had opposed him.

Meanwhile, the publicity section of the Republican National Committee has been beating the propaganda pants off its opposite number in the Democratic National Committee.

Practically every day the Republicans have been sending out two kinds of letters. One, white, contains pep talks and advice on how to get out the vote. The other, in a pink enveolpe and marked "Battle Line," contains attacks on Kennedy.

The Democratic National Committee's offices here have been in a kind of turmoil, trying to mesh the regular staff in with the Kennedy supporters who are to work with the national committee people for the duration.

The Democrats' publicity sections says it will soon get rolling with some choice things about the Republicans.

So They Say

Bridge of Self-Pity Leads To Martyrdom for Mothers

If she doesn't guard against it, it's easy for a mother to be just a bit of a martyr. So how much of a martyr are you?

● Do you ferquently remind your children of all that you do for them and all the sacrifices you have made for them?

● When junior tracks up a freshly mopped floor do you go into a pitiful tale about how hard you've worked scrubbing floors, instead of quickly and cheerfully dispatching him to get a mop and clean up the mess he has made?

● When your husband is grouchy or unreasonable do you suffer in silence to get the children's sympathy instead of telling him off or trying to kid him into a better mood?

● When you allow the children to do something that you consider a bit dangerous do you remind them that you won't rest until they are safely home?

● Do you resort to tears instead of taking disciplinary action when one of your children is rude to you or defies your authority?

● Do you regale your friends with how much you did for your children and how inconsiderate they are of you now that they are grown?

● Do you "do without" clothes so that your teen-age daughter can have everything she wants? Do you frequently remind her of the fact instead of dividing up the clothes budget more fairly?

● Do you let your children get off without any chores and then complain about how hard you have to work?

It's so easy for a mother to become a bit of a martyr that every mother ought to check once in a while to be sure she isn't becoming one.

FINDING THE WAY

Prayer, the Pulse of Life

By RALPH W. LOEW
Written For NEA

The meeting was called to order and the presiding officer called on a clergyman to lead in prayer. It was the usual, the typical, the expected—except that this time the clergyman was not to be held tight by the ordinary.

He began to pray saying, "I want to thank you, God, for stopping me at the door this morning, enabling me to chat with the milkman for a moment, and then to notice the shadows that played on the lawn."

There was a hush in the room. He went on with a note of gratitude and a petition for awareness. A cherished moment, not easily repeated or imitated, held with the air of reverence that was kept hallowed in the casual words. One remembered the accolade given to a reporter who won a Pulitzer prize for his statement of life in his little Vermont community. Said the inscription, "He made the ordinary to be universal and the provincial to have the meaning of the world." Some prayers do just that.

Peter Marshall, the famed chaplain of the Senate, did that with his hearers. He wasn't just shocking them. He was rather revealing in this quiet way, the deeps of one's needs in simple language which recognized the need of Someone else in the midst of it all.

So he walked into the Senate chambers and began to pray: "Lord, when we get sick of ourselves, ashamed of our littleness, our selfishness and the petty things that irritate us, then let it be the beginning of spiritual health making us willing to have Thee create in us clean hearts and renew right spirits within us. Hold us steady lest we lose our poise. Where we were wrong, make us willing to change and where we are right, make us easy to live with. For Jesus' sake, Amen." No wonder there was a hush and the day had begun with new poise.

Or, here is the prayer of St. Francis, "Lord, make me an instrument of thy peace. Where there is hatred, let there be love; where there is injury, pardon; where there is doubt, faith; where there is despair, hope; where there is darkness, light; where there is sadness, joy." Reading the words, years later, the ordinariness drops aside, and there is the quitting of the petty while the spirit is lifted.

This is the meaning of prayer. It is "the conversation of a believing heart with God."

It is not a reaching up to pull down the awesome wisdom of God to a personal problem, like the tug of a petulant child upon the hem of the mother's dress. It is not just a whispering in the dark. Nor is it the cry of the sailor, who, when the waves were high and everything else looked bad, prayed, "Lord, it's been 25 years since I've bothered you, and if you get me out of this mess I promise you it will be another 25."

Prayer is the contagion of health. It is the pulse of life. It is the waiting, the lifting, the speaking, the notice of God's reach through into our lives, the struggle of a believing person crying, "Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief." It needs to be rescued from just the extraordinary and brought into the ordinary. For it is the normal way of life!

Enjoy Bountiful Peaches In A No-Bake Ice Cream Pie

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Written For NEA

A bumper crop of peaches, the largest since 1947—over 74 million bushels—is luscious market news.

An outstanding advance in food technology makes it possible today to get peaches that actually taste as though just picked from the tree. The process is called hydrocooling. After the peaches are picked, they are rushed by truck to packing houses near the orchards, and then placed on conveyor belts for sorting and grading. Next, the conveyor belts move the fruit through an ice-cold water spray until thoroughly chilled (this is hydrocooling). Next, they are carefully hand-packed into baskets or lugs, which are systematically stacked into express refrigerated cars and trucks.

To get quality fruit, select peaches with good "ground color." A creamy white or yellow ground color—or undercolor—indicates the fruit has ripened satisfactorily. Immature peaches have a green undertone and lack flavor and juiciness. Firmness is important. Firm and firm-ripe peaches are the best buys, for they can be kept a day or two—well chilled—and still maintain their flavor. Fully ripe peaches are excellent only for immediate eating. (Avoid hard peaches because they will not ripen satisfactorily.)

No-Bake Peach Ice Cream Pie

For the crust, use cookie or graham cracker crumbs. Moisten with just enough melted butter to hold the crumbs together, and carefully press into the pie pan. Chill until firm. Then spread softened ice cream, using vanilla or a nutty ice cream, into a thin layer over the crust. Add a layer of fresh peach slices (be careful not to overlay the slices), then more ice cream, another layer of peaches, a layer of ice cream and then just enough peaches on top to form a wreath around the edge of the pie. Chill about an hour before serving.

Monday's Dinner: Chicken and beef loaf, curry gravy, whipped potatoes, carrots with chopped parsley, crusty bread, butter or margarine, no-bake peach ice cream pie, coffee, tea, milk.

Feeders Day Topic: Corn Silage For Beef

Cattlemen attending the University of Illinois Cattle Feeders Day Sept. 2 can pick up some valuable tips on how long they should feed corn silage to get the cheapest gains.

"We will also report on how corn silage fed for different lengths of time affects the carcass value," says beef cattle scientist George E. Mitchell.

In this study workers feed steers a ration of free-choice corn silage plus 1½ pounds of soybean meal and 1 pound of hay per head daily. The animals receive this ration for 140, 210 or 280 days. Then they went on a full feed or grain.

A "control" group of similar steers received about 15 pounds of silage plus a full feed of grain immediately. Workers are comparing their performance with that of the steers receiving the free-choice corn silage.

Preliminary data suggest that the steers receiving corn silage for the 140-day period put on the cheapest gains. More detailed results will be reported at Cattle Feeders Day.

Another report to be presented concerns the puzzling problem of vitamin A deficiency in feeder cattle. Many cattle receive an adequate source of carotene and yet develop vitamin A deficiency symptoms.

Illinois scientists have studies the causes of this problem and how it is best overcome. They have found that commercial vitamin A supplements help cattle recover faster from a deficiency than alfalfa leaf meal does.

The Cattle Feeders Day program starts at 10 a.m. at the beef cattle farm. The formal program begins at 1:15 p.m. in the Auditorium. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Corn and soybeans will be the crop featured at the 1960 University of Illinois Agronomy Day on Sept. 14.

Jack Claar New Extension Director

URBANA—Dr. John B. (Jack) Clarr, administrative field representative for the Federal Extension Service in Washington, D. C., will become associate director of the University of Illinois Agricultural Extension Service effective Sept. 1.

His appointment will be submitted to the University's Board of Trustees at their September meeting by President David D. Henry upon the recommendation of Dean and Director Louis B. Howard of the College of Agriculture.

Dr. Claar will take over the duties of Dr. William G. Kammlade who has served as associate director since 1949 and who retires from that position on Aug. 31.

As associate director, Dr. Claar will work with Dean Howard in administering the off - campus agricultural and home economics extension program in Illinois.

One Of Largest

Illinois has one of the largest state extension services in the United States. It comprises a state staff of more than 100 technical subject-matter specialists and administrative personnel and more than 300 county agricultural and home economics advisers who are located in every county of the state.

A natice of Watson, Effingham county, Dr. Claar attended Blackburn College from 1940 to 1942, served in the U. S. Air Corps from 1943 to 1945, and graduated in agriculture from the University of Illinois in 1947. He received his master's degree from the University in 1948 and his Ph. D degree in 1959.

A recognized authority in the field of agricultural economics and farm management, he worked with the Sangamon Valley Farm Bureau Farm Management Service from 1947 to 1951, when he was appointed to the College of Agriculture staff as farm management specialist and state leader of Farm Bureau Farm Management fieldmen. In 1955 he was named chief of the farm management extension branch of the Federal Extension Service in Washington and was appointed administrative field representative of the Federal Extension Service in 1958.

"Extremely Fortunate"

In recommending Dr. Claar's appointment, Dean Howard commented that "the University of Illinois and its College of Agriculture is extremely fortunate in finding an associate director who thoroughly knows and understands Illinois agriculture, who combines high educational achievement with practical field experience, and who has had broad administrative responsibilities at both state and federal levels of agriculture."

At the same time, Dean Howard paid special tribute to Dr. Kammlade for his 45 years of service to the College of Agriculture. The retiring associate director first joined the college staff in 1915. He served as head of the sheep division of the department of animal science from 1921 until 1949, when he was appointed to his present position. In addition to his work in extension administration, Dr. Kammlade has been widely recognized for his work as chairman of the committee in charge of the University's 5,000-acre Dixon Springs Experiment Station in southern Illinois.

NEW DIRECTOR—Dr. John B. (Jack) Claar (left) has been appointed Associate Director of the Cooperative Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics at the University of Illinois beginning Sept. 1, announces Dean Louis B. Howard of the College of Agriculture.

The new director is particularly well known in this area. He served as fieldman for the Sangamon Valley Farm Bureau Farm Management Service from 1947 to 1951.

Dr. Elmer Sauer To Lead Soil Conference

A Scott county native, Dr. Elmer Sauer of Urbana will preside at the 15th annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America to be held on the campus of Ontario Agricultural college, Guelph, Ontario, Canada, Aug. 28- 31..

This is the first time the society has met in Canada. Sauer, as president, will open the conference with a keynote address, "Man, Land and Technology." He will preside at all sessions.

Internationally known speakers will present the latest information on "Base Resources," "Resources Research," and "Effective Land Resource Use," the three major divisions of the program.

It is anticipated that over 1,500 people will attend the meeting. Tours of Canadian conservation activities have been arranged for members and their families.

To Visit Knox Farms On Management Tour

GALESBURG — When visitors come to the R. K. Mustain and Dale Clay farms near here on August 30 for one of the regional Illinois Farm Management tours, they will see top examples of efficient and profitable livestock production.

D. F. Wilken, Uinversity of Illinois farm management specialist, cites these examples from the Mustain farm records for the past three years:

Volume is high. The value of feed fer per acre is 5 percent above average.

Total costs are about average, but value of production is $38 per acre above average.

Pig production is 23 percent above average, or 1.7 more pigs saved per litter.

Return for each dollar of feed fed to hogs is 16 cents more than average, or a 10 percent increase.

Wilken sums up the lesson from this farm in this way: Mustain is a tenant operator on a 220-acre farm who operates a good-sized livestock business at top efficiency. He can match the net earnings from the extra-large farm operations with less than top efficiency. However, in a time of narrowing profit margins, the small operator with superior management ability may find it to his advantage to use his ability in operating a larger business.

All interested persons are invited to the tour, sponsored jointly by the Illinois Farm Bureau Farm Management Service and the University of Illinois Agricultural Extension Service. The tour starts at 9:30 a.m. at the Mustain farm and moves to the Clay farm at noon. Luncheon reservations (barbecued pork chops) should be made with Stanley Sims, Warren county farm adviser, Monmouth, or D. F. Wilken, 450 Mumford Hall, Urbana.

The University of Illinois College of Agriculture announces that its annual Cattle Feeders Day will be held Friday, Sept. 2. More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend this event, which attracts cattlemen from all over the state and from surrounding states as well.

The American dairy cow set new production records last year, reportes the National Dairy Council. During 1959, over 2994 quarts of milk was produced by the average cow.

Bovine TB Now At Record Low

URBANA—Fewer Illinois cattle are being branded with the tuberculosis "T" than ever before.

The massive, nationwide eradication program started in 1918 has been very successful, says Dr. G. T. Woods, University of Illinois veterinarian. The number of Illinois cattle reacting to testing dropped from 52,139 in 1925 to 370 in 1959.

Dr. Woods says the cattle tuberculosis threat to people is at an all-time low in Illinois. But, he adds, nobody is protecting the cattle from people. It is not unusual for a veterinary finding tubercular cattle to recommend that the farmer, his family and any herd personnel have a thorough medical examination.

These examinations sometimes show that a member of the farm family or a herdsman has active tuberculosis and in all likelihood gave it to infected animals.

The gains from eradicating bovine tuberculosis must be carefully guarded, says Dr. Woods. Illinois sits in a band of states, extending from Iowa to New York, in which veterinarians find 83 percent of all the tuberculosis cattle in the United States. This means that reservoirs of infection still exist and efforts must continue to wipe them out.

Christmas Tree Growers To Meet

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hart of Arenzville will attend the first convention of the National Christmas Tree Growers' association Aug. 25-27 at Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., according to Leland L. Jens, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., convention chairman.

The National Christmas Tree Growers' association, organized in 1955 at Butler, Pa., works to further the overall interests of the Christmas tree industry. Growers from coast to coast will be attending this first national meeting.

A Christmas tree grading contest is one phase of the activities planned for the growers. Some of the program topics include: U. S. Grading Techniques and Methods; Advertising and Promotion of Christmas Trees; Spraying Methods and Results; Merchandising and Packaging Christmas Tree By-Products; a "Pine Panel" of eight experts; Christmas Tree Cutting, Draying and Tying, and many other timely topics.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

PRICES OF FEEDER CATTLE DIP SHARPLY

The proverbial Texas cattleman may have to get by with only one new Cadillac this year. And the ordinary rancher's wife may get only one new dress. The reason: Prices of feeder cattle have dropped more in the past 12 months than prices of any other major farm product.

In early August prices of Good and Choice steer calves at Kansas City were selling for $26.50 a hundred pounds compared with $33 last year. At the same time Choice 500- to 800-pound steers were bringing $25.40, down from $30.25 in 1959.

Heifer calves, Good and Choice, sold for $23 compared with $30.50 a year before. Choice 500- to 750-pound heifers were going for $22.75, off from $28.25 in 1959.

There are several reasons for the lower prices this year. The most important one is that prices of fat cattle have been trending downward for 15 months. Choice steers at Chicago recently averaged about $25 a hundred pounds, down from $30.33 in April 1958. When prices of fed cattle decline, costs of replacements must drop more than prices of finished cattle if the cattle feeder is to stay in business.

Supply Larger

The supply of stocker and feeder cattle and calves is larger than it was 12 months ago. The 1960 calf crop in Texas is estimated at 4,258,000 head, 4 percent more than last year. Four other southern Plains and Mountain States also reported about 4 percent more calves. These states were Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona. Other states from which Illinois draws supplies have about the same number of calves as in 1959.

The supply of yearlings in these listed states should be larger too. Last January Texas reported 14 percent more calves under one year on hand than a year earlier. Oklahoma had 6 percent more, Colorado 10 percent and New Mexico 13 percent.

Hay production is 6 percent larger than last year in the 11 Western States and 16 percent greater in the six Plains States. But this bigger new crop is more fan offset by a sharp reduction in the carryover of old hay. The total supply of hay in both Plains and Western States is 1 percent less than last year and 3 percent less than the five-year average. There are sharp reductions in the supply of hay peranimal in Kansas, Wyoming and Utah.

Wyoming and Montana had a dry summer. Another drouth area extended from New Mexico eastward across central and south Texas and to the Atlantic Ocean.

Some Forced Sales

There have been some forced sales of cattle because of feed or water shortage. There has been very little contracting of cattle for fall delivery. Ranchers are asking for larger down payments than they got last year, when many buyers forfeited their payments rather than take the cattle after the price dropped sharply.

Prices of fat cattle apparently reached the peak of the current cycle in 1959, when Choice steers at Chicago averaged $27.83. They are running around $2.00 lower this year and seem likely to average around $24.00 in 1961.

Lower prices are expected because farmers and ranchers are still building up their herds. They added 5 million head in 1959 and are adding 3 to 4 million more this year. This is the first year of materially increased slaughter. Slaughter is increasing about 10 percent this year and is expected to increase for at least another two or three years.

4-H BEEF FOR HOSPITALS

Patients at Our Saviour's and Passavant hospitals will eat prime 4-H beef next week.

On Tuesday the Elliott State bank will deliver to each hospital half of the carcass of the 1,100 pound Angus steer entered in the Morgan County Junior Fair by Myrna Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin E. Martin, rural route 3, Jacksonville.

The photo was taken as Miss Martin handed the halter strap to E. H. Garlich, Elliott farm manager, after he bid 26½c a pound for the fine steer.

The animal was processed by the Morgan County Locker Service. This is the third consecutive year the bank has supported the 4-H livestock auction by buying a steer and then donating the meat to the two hospitals.

Rockets And Space—

Device To 'Fly' X-15 Before It Was Built

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Official U. S. Navy Photograph

Three tests of the X-15's predicted acceleration pattern were run on the U. S. Navy Human Centrifuge at Johnsville, Pa. between April, 1957, and July, 1959.

The first series of tests determined that the pilot could stand the most severe conditions that would occur in the flight of this rocket. The second test proved he could function as a pilot under these conditions. And the third found how well the pilot could control the X-15 during its usual flight pattern.

In the picture at the top of this article members of the Aeronautical computer Laboratory staff feed information into the computer. This machine the simulated flights run on the centrifuge.

By this method the X-15 was flown 350 times, under all sorts of conditions before it was built. In the foreground of the picture CDR G. F. Fischer, commanding officer of the ACL, checks the flight's progress.

The subjects for these simulated flights were pilots who had flown the X-1A or X-2 research rocket planes. The X-1A was the first plane to fly faster than sound. It was built to study supersonic flight before any supersonic wind tunnels had been built for this purpose.

Like the X-15 the X-2 was designed for studying high altitude flight. The X—which means experimental—planes between the X-2 and X-15 were jets rather than rockets.

In the second phase of the test the flight pattern of the X-15, 150 flights were dynamically simulated on the centrifuge. This determined the limitations of the pilot's control of the rockets, and also the adequacy of the instruments and controls he uses.

200 More "Flights"

The third centrifuge program started in June, 1958, and by July, 1959, two hundred dynamic simulated flights had been run. This is probably several times as many flights as the X-15 will ever make.

Certainly, more things happened during these simulated flights than will happen during the actual flights! After all, the centrifuge tests were run to find out what would happen under very possible condition.

The third program of tests was run in cooperation with personnel from North American Aviation, Inc., the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics (NACA) Langley Aeronautical laboratory, the NACA High Speed Flight Test Station, and the U. S. Air Force Flight Test Center. The NACA later became the NASA—National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

On the centrifuge, more extreme flight conditions run at a faster rate can be examined than in actual flight. Sometimes these conditions would actually be beyond the limitations of the pilot and or the plane.

If this happened in a real flight the plane and pilot would be destroyed. But the pilot and the mockup are brought safely out of these conditions in a centrifuge test by either: automatic limits of the machine: the centrifuge watchers, the medical officer, the pilot himself.

Wonder World—

Big Fish Doesn't Like Schools

By Rip Barnsdall

Swordfish are found at or near the surface in most of the warm ocean waters of the world. They are among the largest fishes to be found. Only sharks and oar fish are generally larger.

There are other living things found in the oceans that are larger, such as whales, giant squids, etc., but these animals are not fish—they are mammals (feed their young milk).

Swordfish can move very rapidly through the water. Stories and tales have been told of how they can use their "swords," called rostrums.

Although the rostrum (sword) has been known to be driven into hulls of ships 13 to 22 inches thick, this is not done on purpose by the fish. The probable reason is that the fish was going at such a terrific speed that it couldn't swerve out of the way when it suddenly came upon the ship.

Sword A Puzzle

The exact use of the long, tapered rostrum isn't known, although it seems to be a case of streamlining rather than anything else.

When the swordfish goes after its food, mostly small fishes, it will attack a school by threshing its rostrum around, stunning and wounding the smaller fishes.

It will then feed at its leisure upon the food supply it has killed or wounded.

Swordfish can reach a length of 20 feet, but usually average in size from 8 to 10 feet. Larger ones weigh as much as 1,000 pounds.

The color of the back is a dark purple-blue that has a metallic sheen to it. Its bottom side is somewhat of a silvery-grey. The rostrum is dark on top and pale below.

Don't Like Schools

Swordfish are generally a solitary fish. That is, they do not swim in schools, although two or more might be found in the same neighborhood, but at least fifty feet apart.

Swordfish are good game fish and are considered to be a good catch by commercial fishermen because an oil gotten from its liver is even richer than the best known cod-liver oil.

Young Swordfish do not look at all like their parents when they hatch out of their eggs. It takes a period of time until they take on the characteristics of an adult swordfish.

Gary is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan F. Lahey of RR 4, Jacksonville, and has a brother Terry and sisters Sheree and Jerry Kay who are January marchers.

Eva Jo Hester

Eva is 4 years old right today, August 21!

Eva and Patti are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Hester of Winchester.

Randall Keith Williams

Another first time marcher appearing right on his Birthday, Aug. 21, is Randall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott W. Williams of 1407 S. Clay.

The mothers of Randall and Miss Rebecca (above) shared the same room at the hospital when these children arrived last year. They are each having parties. Randall has just returned from his first visit to his Grandparents, and other relatives, in Charlotte, N. Carolina.

BIRTHDAY GOOD WISHES

All the Junior Page readers and your editor wish each and every one of this long parade of Birthday marchers a VERY HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

YOUR BIRTHDAY

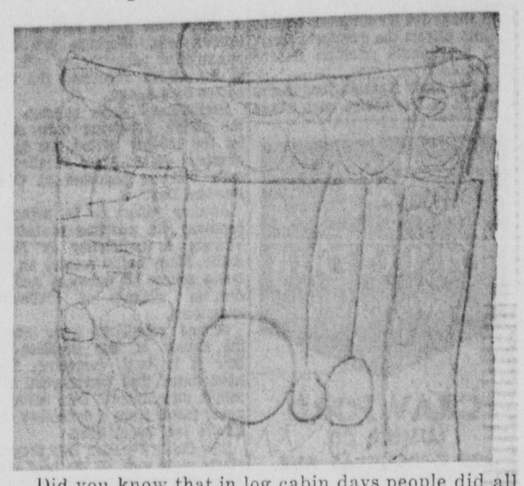
To march in the Birthday Parade, send your name, address, age and Birthdate—with a snapshot if you have one—to the Jacksonville Junior Journal Courier two weeks before your Birthday. Photos may be called for as soon as they have appeared in the paper.

If you have a party, write and tell us about that later.

GECKO'S PECULIARITIES

Like many other lizards, the gecko can change the color of its skin. It is able to walk upside down on a smooth ceiling and climb a pane of gless since its feet have catlike, retractable claws that cling to rough surfaces as well as soft pads, covered with many tiny hooks that can grab even glass.

Fireplace Cooking



Did you know that in log cabin days people did all their cooking in the fireplace? When you visit New Salem state park you will see the pots hanging there just as they did in those long ago days.

Marsha Yancy made this drawing when she visited that park with the Ashland kindergarten class. Marsha may now come in for her JUNIOR JOURNALIST PENCIL and JUNIOR PRESS CARD—and you can get one too by sending in a drawing—just 4 inches square—to the Jacksonville Junior Journal Courier.

Part 14: Makes Yard Look Neat

"My, the yard looks beautiful, Mom," said Tommy as he viewed things over on Monday morning; "But I see a few twigs here and there, guess the rain and wind brought them down last night. I'll get the rake and clean them up for you.

"I sure didn't forget what you told me, Mom, I did something for Grandma every day."

"Of course," he continued with a grin, "she did bake lots of cookies!"

"I'll get some into the oven right away," Mom answered with a smile; "Most mothers are cooky ladies, Tommy . . . especially when they have a son as thoughtful as my son Tom!"

Tommy expanded his chest with pride, and my, how he bent to the rake!

Spot Stays Near By

Every now and then, Spot reared himself up to be petted, and Tommy always gave him a few affectionate pats, for Spot seldom left Tommy's side, except to move the old yellow tom cat next door if he came on their lawn. But he hurrier right back the minute Tom scooted for home, and looked up proudly at Tommy to see what his young Master had to say.

Tommy would tweak his ears and say seriously, "What's wrong with Tom today, Spot? Did he forget to wash his face? And Spot would wag his tail as if to say, "Yes, and when that tom cat needs scolding I'm the guy who can do it!"

Martin Home

Tommy paused often as he worked, to watch the purple Martin birds circling their house, and then lighting gracefully on their all-around porch.

The Martins came before school closed every spring, and because they didn't build in every neighborhood, Tommy's family was very proud of them.

The Martins likes its house up high, and Tommy and his Dad made a very large one and put it on top of a tall pole in the back yard. It really was an apartment house, for it was divided and served as many as eight pair of the beautiful birds.

Tommy also paused to look at the pretty rock-edged pool where gold fish darted in and out from the lily pads, as if they were playing hide and seek, or maybe a game of tag. Who knows . . . maybe they were.

Perhaps few people know it, but the little fish we can buy at our variety stores, grow to be of good size when given the freedom of a larger pools, and they became several inches long and quite large in girth. Of course, they must have the pool heated in winter.

When Dad came home for lunch, he was much impressed with his Son's appreciation of home. After dinner, Tommy and Spot took off for the ball park.

Tommy was so happy, for he loved to please his parents, and his young heart was very light when he saw that the boys were already gathered!

Plan Demonstration Of Terrace Building In Three Counties

The directors of three Soil Conservation districts in this area are arranging demonstrations on the construction of cut and fill type terraces. These are designed to eliminate or minimize sharp turns and points row, and at the same time save soil and water.

The demonstrations will be held in Scott, Greene and Brown counties on the some day, Thursday, Sept. 8, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"The most serious soil and water losses are occurring on the gently sloping fields, those with a slope of from 2 to 5 per cent," says Joe Graham, Morgan-Scott work unit conservationist.

"Such problems as poor soil tilth, poor drainage, depleted supplies of plant food, crop insects and diseases in the soil can all be corrected or minimized, but if the soil is lost, no practical corrective measures are at hand.

"We urge all farmers and landowners to attend one of these demonstrations to see a complete terrace and one under construction. These jobs will be going on at the same time, so stop in at the one nearby or visit more than one."

Demonstration locations are:

Greene county—Eugene Breckon farm, four miles west of White Hall on Hillview black top, then half mile south, LeRoy Reeder, conservationist, in charge.

Brown county—Raymond Geisler farm, seven miles west of Mt. Sterling on Highway 24, then a quarter mile north, Gene Nichols in charge.

Scott county—Miss Nelle Ring farm, west edge of Winchester, Highway 106, north side of road, Graham and aides in charge.

Thousands Of Sane Old Folks Wind Up In Mental Hospitals

By ROGER GREEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

One of the profound tragedies of America's mental hospital system is that thousands upon thousands of old folks are being dumped into psychiatric wards along with the chronic insane.

In ward after ward at three huge public mental institutions, I saw gentle, mild-mannered old people—apparently quite normal except for minor eccentricities—sitting in meek resignation among babbling schizophrenics and brooding manic depressives.

Many of them are simply old, with no place else to go, no family willing to give them shelter and care for their simple needs.

Some of them have had a mild stroke or their minds are confused by the effects of senility. But do they belong in a mental institution?

"The usual pattern in this country seems to be for elderly patients, showing symptoms of delusional thinking, to come into a mental hospital and remain until they die," says the American Psychiatric Assn. Journal.

"Many (old) people are now being classified as psychotic who actually need nothing more than attention to their physical needs, their food, cleanliness, and so on. They will cause nobody much trouble, so they can be cared for quite easily in a facility other than a state hospital."

The APA, recognizing the red-hot controversy involved in the problem, adds:

"But there is no better place to discharge our responsibility to the sick aged than the state hospital. Lacking proper facilities (elsewhere), we are in no position to say they do not belong in a public psychiatric hospital."

On another note, Dr. William F. Sheeley, APA project chief, declares:

"The community is settling more and more senile persons into psychiatric wards formerly used only by younger mentally ill patients. Some of these elderly people have psychoses or are pretty forgetful and confused. Most of them simply need an old folks' home.

"We must begin a ruthless pruning job. We must return to the community those persons who are not really treatable and those who are not really (mentally) ill."

Several states, spurred by a combination of humanitarian motives and a desire to save tax money, are taking active steps to weed elderly nonmental cases out of state mental hospitals.

The money-saving factor stems from the fact that oldsters confined in a state mental hospital cannot qualify for a federal old-age pension.

However, if they are transferred to a nursing home they promptly become entitled to federal old-age benefits—and thus the state, instead of paying for the care of old folks in a state hospital, can shift part of the burden to the federal government.

An Associated Press survey showed that Kentucky and Ohio, among other states, are moving in that direction.

Kentucky recently tightened its policy of admitting to state hospital only persons afflicted with mental illness and barring old age as sufficient cause for admission.

The Blue Grass State has also launched a "home-going" program to place elderly patients who are not suffering from mental illness in boarding and nursing homes.

In Ohio, Gov. Michael DiSalle is pushing a program to transfer as many as possible of the state's 3,400 aged patients from state mental hospitals to bursing homes where the federal government would pay about 52 per cent of the cost. It would save the state several million dollars.

Voicing concern over DiSalle's policy, Dr. Robert A. Haines, Ohio director of mental hygiene, says many patients were not sent to mental hospitals originally because they were old but because they were mentally ill—and that they grew old in the institutions.

It is, of course, true thay many of the chronic mental cases—and they are the ones with the least hope of recovery—grew old behind the walls of state mental institutions. Many of them have been there for 30, 40 or 50 years.

But it is also true, as noted by Dr. Ewald W. Busse, chairman of Duke University Medical Center's Department of Psychiatry, that "the proportion of elderly people in our mental hospitals is increasing at an alarming rate."

Dr. Leo H. Bartemeier, medical director at Seton Psychiatric Institution in Baltimore, Md., says:

"The increasing admissions of the aged to our mental hospitals create a staggering problem."

Forty per cent of all patients admitted to mental hospitals are over 60 years old. Thirty per cent are over 65. In New York State, for example, nearly 30,000 out of the state's 88,000 mental hospital patients are over 65 years old.

What this means, in terms of human tragedy and expense to the nation's taxpayers, is underscored by a simple statistic: 94 per cent of all mental patients over 65 will remain in hospital until they die.

How many of these old folks are genuine cases of mental illness—and how many are merely custodial cases, heartlessly dumped into the hospital as the cheapest and easiest way otu—is anybody's guess.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, 68, longtime superintendent of the federal government's St. Elizabeths Mental Hospital in Washington, D.C., told the writer:

"There is no question that the old folks are increasing among our mental hospital patients. One reason is that our general population is getting older and there are now more old folks.

"more serious is the fact that we have a cliff-dwelling population—we live in apartments and row houses. So a slight disturbance by an older person leads to complaints and the family reacts by sending the offender off to a mental hospital."

Birds and crocodiles are the closest living relatives of the prehistoric dinosaurs.

THERE'LL BE MORE ECHOES—Technicians at Langley Field, Va., prepare two more Project Echo plastic balloon satellites. On the work table each satellite is slightly more than 157 feet long. They will be compactly folded into metal containers 26½ inches in diameter. The satellite at right, in the early stages of folding, is held by 12-inch clothespins. The one at left, further along in the intricate process, is being encased in a vinyl sleeve. After this is finished, the final small amounts of air trapped inside is removed.

Cool Weather Causes Fear For Late Corn

Cool air from Canada. Night time temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the northern Corn Belt and daytime temperatures in the 70's.

These figures caused apprehension concerning the many late fields of corn which were already some two to three weeks behind normal. Indiana reported the second coolest July in the last 80 years. Northern Illinois had only eight days of 90° temperatures or above this year compared to 20 on the same date last year.

Corn does not "catch up" under such conditions—its maturity can depend only on a long, dry fall.

However, in Nebraska, DeKalb reporters indicate that the corn crop which had started late had now caught up to normal because of high temperatures. Prospects had improved greatly in a single month.

Early August rains were widely scattered and adequate in most areas, but some of the northwest area of southwestern Minnesota, northeastern Nebraska, Dakota and north western Iowa had suffered from drouth. Another area in southern states close to the Gulf had been dry nearly all of the growing season. Some Mississippi counties reported hay and pasture only 10% of normal.

In general, however, conditions are quite favorable as can be seen from these widely distributed reports:

Virginia—"Tropical storm Brenda provided enough rain to assure a good corn crop in the eastern part of the state."

E. Nebraska—Corn progress unbelievable in month. Lots of "good" and "excellent" fields now. Early frost still a big worry.

Oklahoma—Corn generally good after widespread rains.

S. Nebraska—Corn has made tremendous progress—now about normal.

N.W. Ohio—Very tall crop of excellent corn. Oats, wheat, tomatoes all bumper crops.

S. Wisconsin—Upland corn very good. Low spots a failure—too wet.

W. Illinois—Much land too late—some fields could not even be planted.

E. Pennsylvania—Corn excellent—ample moisture has favored development of leaf blight.

S. Central Iowa—Heavy rains on weekend of August 6 helped corn greatly.

Fewer cows, but more milk per cow. That continues to be the trend on dairy farms all over the country, the National Dairy Council reports. The U. S. cow population hit an all time low of 19.3 million head in 1959, while the trend in milk output per cow has been rising steadily.

WEATHER PUSHES LATE SEEDED OATS TO HIGH YIELDS

URBANA — Nearly ideal conditions produced some of the highest oat yields ever recorded on the University of Illinois agronomy farm this year. And this occurred despite a moderately late seeding date—the second week of April.

Argonomist L. B. Miller reports that several rotation plots produced oats yields over 100 bushels an acre. Even a limited, but otherwise untreated corn-oat-alfalfa rotation plot produced an 80-bushel yield.

Miller explains that extremely high yields in this way: May and June weather in central Illinois was much like that in the ideal oat-producing areas of Wisconsin. Cool weather along with abundant rainfall and a lack of disease and insects joined together to make ideal growing conditions.

Although some plots had more fertility than others, this variation did not seem to cause the usual yield differences. The ideal weather produced very favorable yields on plots with only moderate fertility, Miller reports.

Research work in progress on the University of Illinois Agronomy Farm will be displayed at the annual Agronomy Day Sept. 14 at Urbana. At this time, research in corn and soybeans will receive special emphasis. All interested persons are invited.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

We all have unexpected guests drop in from time to time, but a California couple recently had a surprise caller who should top them all for being unexpected . . . a 4-ft. tall, 500 - lb. baby elephant named Candi. The couple, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Land, were sitting on the front porch enjoying a little evening air when Mrs. L. suddenly gasped, "Oh! There goes an elephant!" The startled Mr. L. turned in time to see a pint-sized pachyderm squeeze through the back door and disappear into the house. They followed and watched him stroll calmly into the living room. The Lands finally coaxed him out of the house with a head of lettuce, then called the local sheriff's office. Deputies came and took Candi home to Nature Haven Ranch in nearby Saugus, Calif. Says Mrs. Land, "he behaved himself like a gentleman. He didn't even knock down a lamp." Land's sakes!

Pentagon Puts Odds Against Accidental Atomic Bomb Blast At A Trillion To One

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The odds against an atomic bomb blowing up accidentally have been placed at a trillion to one by Pentagon weapons authorities.

They explain that the nuclear charge has never caused any of the seven reported mishaps involving either bombs or missiles. Instead, they blame the accidents on foul-ups in the weapon carriers.

Most recent accident occurred in June at McGuire AFB, N.J., when a Bomarc missile caught fire. A report that a nuclear accident had occurred temporarily panicked the surrounding community. An exploding bottle of helium gas is believed which crashed with nuclear weapons on board. In 1958, a plane accidentally dropped an atom bomb near Florence, S.C.

* * *

In each case the chance of a nuclear charge going off was virtually impossible, say experts of DASA—the Defense Atomic Support Agency, which is in charge of all nuclear weapons design and testing. Reason is that an atomic blast can be caused only by a complicated electrical process. Here's how it works:

TNT IN EIGHT Nike-Ajax missiles blew up in 1958 and left this wreckage and 10 dead in Middletown, N.J. No nuclear charge was involved.

To have caused the blaze. Another mishap took place in Middletown, N.J., in 1958 when the TNT in eight Nike-Ajax missiles blew up and killed 10 people.

Four accidents have involved planes

Nuclear bombs and warheads contain a lump of plutonium or uranium inside a sphere of TNT. The atomic material must be compressed to explode.

This compression is achieved by blasting the TNT inward. Regular explosions produce an outward blast.

"Implosions" are accomplished by triggering with electricity several detonating caps which circle the TNT. All caps must be detonated at once to set off the nuclear charge.

Without simultaneous triggering, the TNT will explode outwardly and scatter the nuclear material rather than blow it up..

The prime means of preventing accidental detonations is a system of safety switches all of which must be closed before the weapon will go off. The number and location of these switches are classified. But DASA officials believe it would take a miracle for them to be closed either accidentally or by saboteurs. One expert explains:

"Our switches are unique. Important switches are not accessible. In certain instances two or more persons must take independent actions to move an important switch.

* * *

"Some switches may be in the weapon, and some may be in the machine that carries the weapon to its target. Some are closed before the weapon is dropped or launched. Others close only after the weapon is in its trajectory."

As a further precaution, batteries are disconnected when nuclear weapons are stored. Storage areas are always surrounded by high fences and often patrolled by armed guards. Electronic alarms are hidden throughout these areas.

All personnel who work with nuclear weapons undergo strict security checks and thorough training. Psychiatrists watch each man closely during his training period for any signs that he is unreliable.

A man is never allowed to work on or near a nuclear weapon by himself. Access to an atomic device requires the presence of two or more persons so that they can watch each other.

DASA experts have been testing the safety of atomic weapons for 14 years. During that time they have dropped them from planes and burned them. In no instance were they able to blow up the nuclear material without electricity.

AIR FORCE PLANE accidentally dropped an A-bomb near Florence, S.C., in 1958, but the crater was caused by explosion of TNT in weapon.

The biggest hazard connected with nuclear weapons is the chance of accidental explosion of the TNT. Dangers include the blast itself and the scattering of tiny bits of plutonium which can cause serious injury if breathed or swallowed. Fire can also release radioactive particles, but in smaller amounts.

DASA officials warn you to stay at least 1,500 feet away from the scene of a nuclear weapon accident until their experts decontaminate the area. DASA has 400 decontamination teams stationed throughout the country.

UNRELATED TWINS

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP)—A cow belonging to a farmer near here had a multiple birth recently but the offspring can hardly be called twins.

One is a Hereford heifer; the other a Guernsey bull.

The two different breeds from the same cow is the result of some scientific meddling. The Guernsey is attributed to artificial insemination; the Hereford to later service by a bull.

THE WOLF THAT RODE

By Nelson Nye
© Nelson Nye 1960 Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: In spite of warnings, Brett Fasken has taken sides against his sister in a range war. Now he rides to help rancher Trone and his sister Lola who have been outlawed by the cattlemen for alleged rustling.

* * *

XII

Lola Trone with a long-handled pot in one hand stuck her head out the door just as Rhode Island Red came up onto the porch. Startled surprise froze her there. Then her mouth pulled down and there was contempt in her look. "What's the matter with you—lost?"

It threw Red a little off balance and while he was trying to find a suitable reply she said, pointing: "Hobbled O's off there—off behind that lemon-colored hill. Climb back on your horse and start putting down tracks."

Red sneered, then grinned boldly. She wasn't fooling him any. He suddenly laughed at the gone-still look of her, at the blood pounding into her face, at her quick fury.

She drew back as he started toward her, the show of fright in her eyes bringing up the sap in him, shearing off the last thin hampering of caution. He'd waited a long while for a chance like this. Chuckling deep in his throat he sprang after her.

Her eyes were like holes burned through a board with hot iron. In a continuous motion she let go the pot, ducked under his outstretched hand and brought up a rifle that was inside the room. Red got hold of the barrel, swearing, twisting it away from him, savagely wrenching it out of her hands. He flung it into the yard and, thoroughly aroused, grabbed as she tried, too late, to spin away from him.

He caught a fistful of yellow hair and yanked her around and slammed her into the wall. She struck back at him, frantic. He cuffed her hard across the face. She reeled into the table and the table went over and he caught her before she could regain her balance. She tried to get at his eyes. He grabbed the front of her dress and ripped it.

Across the room someone yelled and Red, shocked cold sober, saw Trone, puffy-faced, coming out of a bedroom.

Trone, by the looks, had been hitting a bottle. As though in confirmation one of his empty hands came uncertainly up to clutch at the jamb, steadying him there while his bloodshot eyes, increasingly ugly, fastened on Red and started, bear clumsy, across the room.

Red turned loose and thrust a hand inside his coat. "No!" Lola cried. Red's hand jerked back into sight, flame roaring out of it. Trone, banging into a table leg, was flung half around by the bullet's impact and collapsed like an emptied sack.

* * *

The girl was onto Red then, scratching, clawing, beating her fists into him, driving him backward. He tried to club her with the gun and she got hold of it, dragging his arm down, anchoring her weight to it, bringing him over, sinking her teeth in him. He used his left fist on her, uncaringly, frantic.

No wonder, in all of this noise and confusion, neither of them saw the blurred shape cross the porch or stand black in the doorhole. Not even when, lunging inside, he stood over them was this newcomer noticed. They were too intent, too desperately embroiled in their struggle for the gun. Not until his hand clubbed down on the back of Red's neck were they aware of him, and then only indirectly. Red's knees began to fold. His fingers let go of the pistol. Its sudden release, the almost instant change in stress and tension, staggered the girl's precarious balance and Red's weight, coming down across her back, capsized her. She fell sprawling, Red on top of her. Then his smothering weight was jerked away and, twisting over, she saw Brett Fasken half dragging half carrying the man through the door.

She clawed up onto her feet and, trying to cover herself, stumbled over to Trone. That was where Fasken found her when he came back into the house.

Shock still blurred the lumpy angles of her face and her eyes, too big, were nearly unfocused. Yet despite these things she had command of herself. With the torn dress squeezed high up she said as though nothing in the world could be quite that important, "Will you help me to get him to bed?"

Brett peered at her out of a face still unsettled. "You all right?" he said, voice flat with repression.

Color came into her face and her blue eyes fled away from him. "My bro—"

"He ain't goin' to croak if that's what you're scairt of. Get a pan, some hot water—put plenty of salt in it. Get hold of some whisky. Somethin' to tie around him."

Giving her something to do pulled her out of it.

* * *

Brett unbuttoned and pulled Trone's bloody shirt, baring the wound. It was in the extreme right side of his chest, low down. Still bleeding it looked ugly but he thought it unlikely to have punctured anything vital, though it was entirely possible Trone might have a cracked rib. Brett followed the rib around with his hand and found where the bullet had come out.

Running into that table leg just as Red fired had probably saved the man's life; he certainly hadn't been hit where intended. If they could keep down infection he'd be up and around in three or four days. It was that crack on the head he had got when he fell which had robbed Trone of consciousness. Luck again.

Olympic Expertizing

Fifth in series of articles by the recognized world authority on track and field anlayzing competition in Olympic games

By ROBERTO L. QUERCETANI

ROME (AP) — Russia's athletic might, hardly perceivable in the Olympic games sprints and hurdles, will be felt rather strongly in the field events. But even here the United States is clearly favored to take the most medals and points.

By 1958 the Russians seemed to have things their own way in the high jump. A bukit-up sole in the shoe of their take-off foot helped Stepanov, Sitkin and Kashkarov go over 7 feet, a magic height until then mastered only by America's Charley Dumas, the 1956 Olympic champion. Stepanov raised the world record of 7⅛. After ratifying the mark, the I.A.A.F. decided to put an end to free enterprise in the shoe business, limiting the maximum permissible thickness of the jumpers' sole to a half-inch. Since then, the U.S. has again overtaken Russia as the world's No. 1 producer of high jump talent.

Even so, Russia can be expected to field a good trip in Rome. Viktor Bolshov, a 21-year-old student, cleared 7-¾ in June and ltaer showed consistency in the 6-9 and 6-10 range. Robert Shavlakadze came with in a hair's breadth of 7 feet last year and won against the U.S. at Philadelphia. At 28 he is probably Russia's most experienced performer, now that Kashkavor is out of action and Stepanov has trouble in regaining his old form.

Other strong foreign extrants will be Stig Pettersson of Sweden and Charles ("Chilla") Porter of Australia, who figured prominently at Melbourne in 1956, and possibly Richard Kotei of Ghana, recent winner of the British title with 6-10.

In this event, however, Uncle Sam has an odds-on favorite in 19-year-old John Thomas of Boston Univ. His 7-3¾ is the most unapproached of present-day world records. Defending the good U.S. high jump tradition 11 Olympic gold medals out of 13 contests as reserves deluxe will be Dumas, 23, and Joe Faust, 18, both of California. Faust, the baby cof the U.S. Olympic team, is history's youngest 7-footer.

No event can be described as a more typical U.S. stronghold in track and field than the pole vault.

However, there are three European vaulters whose strength should not be underestimated.

Janis Krasovskis, 23, upped the European record to a respectable 15-3 at the Russian championships in July. In doing so this Latvian vaulter beat Vladimir Bulatov, a veteran of 31. Bulatov won from Ron Morris and Jim Brewer at Moscow in 1958, and barely lost to Don Bragg on the fewer misses' count at Philadelphia last year, after both men had cleared 15-2¾, a personal best for the Russian.

Don Bragg, 25, the Mr. Muscles of Penns Grove, N.J., raised the world record to 15-19¼ in winning at the trials. Bragg also holds the indoor mark with 15-9½. Six years of experience in the "15-footers club" stamp him as the obvious favorite for Rome.

Ron Morris, 25, also has a wide experience as a top-flight contender. This Burbank, Calif., stylist cleared 15-5¼, his all time best, in placing second at the trials.

Dave Clark, 24, was one of the biggest surprises on the 1960 Olympic team. This amazing Texan, who could only master 14 feet last year, came to the trials with a best of 14-9 and yet went 15-3 on his first try, nailing third place and the trip to Rome. What he can do in the Olympics. is anybody's guess.

TOMPION HAS EVEN CHANCE IN TRAVERS STAKES

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP) — C. V. Whitney's Tompion figures an even-money chance against seven other 3 year olds in Saturday's $83,100 Travers Stakes, oldest stakes event for this age group in America.

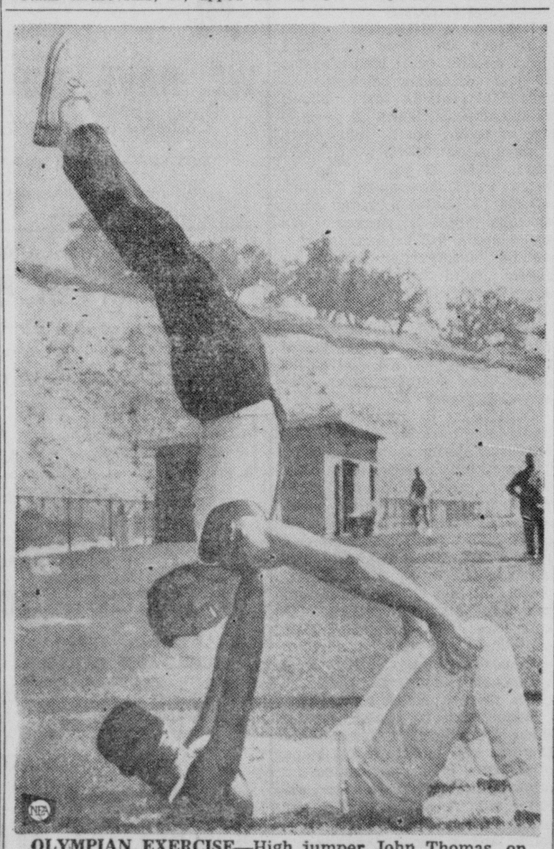
The Travers first was held in 1864 at Saratoga and thus will be having its 91st running. The mile and a quarter race once was known as the Midsummer Derby and for Tompion to be the favorite is fitting. The big son of Tom Fool was favorite for the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes earlier in the year but finished fourth.

OLYMPIC CYCLIST INJURED

ROME (AP) — Jack Simes, Olympic cyclist from Closter, N. J., was injured Friday in a street accident.

He suffered bruises and cuts when his bicycle and a motor scooter collided at an intersection. The injuries were described as not serious.

Several injuries popped up in the U. S. camp but none, other than that of Simes, was regarded as serious enough to jeopardize their Olympic competition.



OLYMPIAN EXERCISE—High jumper John Thomas, on his back, and pole vaulter Don Bragg keep in trim for the Olympic Games in Rome, Aug. 25-Sept. 11, with acrobatics. Both set world records in the final tryouts.

Olympic Stars To Give Reds U.S. Fact Book

By EDDY GILMORE

ROME (AP) — The United States delegation to the 1960 Olympic Games Friday entered the East-West ideological struggle for mens' minds.

Armed with a 32-page booklet—published in Russian and crammed with facts about the United States—members of the American Olympic team will distribute them to Soviet athletes.

"It's purely voluntary," said a spokesman for the U.S. delegation. "Our athletes will be offered the booklets and asked to hand them out to the Russians."

The booklet was published and translated by Freedom Fund, Inc., of New York.

"Just before leaving New York for Rome," said Arthur Lentz, assistant executive director of the U. S. Olympic Committee, "I was given about 200 books and asked to have them distributed."

"I promised nothing but brought them along, and I think it's a good idea," Lentz added. "So do some of the athletes I've talked to."

Along with each booklet is a handsome reproduction, also in Russian, of the Declaration of Independence.

If the Soviet athletes read the books—and they probably will, for Russians dote on foreign reading matter—they will learn facts about the United States that are often directly opposite from the Communist party line on America.

BREWER UNDERGOES SECOND OPERATION

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Brewer, Chicago Cub pitcher hospitalized since being slugged by Cincinnati second baseman Billy Martin Aug. 4, underwent a second operation Thursday.

The operation was on a fracture of the lower rim of the right eye socket. The fracture was not discovered until the swelling around the eye subsided. Dr. B. Harold Griffith termed the operation a success.

Brewer, punched during a ball game, is expected to be discharged from the hospital some time next week. Martin was handed a five-day suspension for the fracas and fined $500.

Downstate Prep Notes

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Richard Snowden is the new head football coach at Astoria high school and he is a former star halfback at Industry high school. He graduated at Western Illinois U. of Macomb and he succeeds Paul Suverkrup, Jr., who resigned recently.

Lou Boudreau, Chicago Cubs manager, led Thornton (Harvey) in 1933-1934-1935 one of the most feared prep units in history swept across the state basketball scene. These teams made three consecutive trips to the championship game of the state finals. In 1933 it beat Springfield 14-13 and in 1934 and 1935 it lost to Quincy 39-27 and Springfield 24-19 in that order.

Collinsville Township Kahoks of 1950 placed fourth in the state finals at Champaign for the third best year at the State prep classic for Coach Willard O. Larson's lads. Captain of that great team was Jack Renfro, present Winchester cage boss and Paris basketball mentor, Richard Maack, was a member of the squad. The first team that season were Captain Renfro, Jim Belobraydic, Chuck Kraak, Curt Klobuchar and Elwood Sapp.

Dick Hamann, Carrollton high basketball coach, is starting his 15th season at the Hawks prep school. He was assistant coach for four years before being named head mentor for the 1949-50 season. Coach Hamann is the dean of the Illinois Valley coaches with the most years of coaching.

John Chapman is starting his twelfth season as head basketball coach at Jacksonville high and he took the Crimsons to the State finals twice. He is a 1940 graduate of Purdue University and he played on two championship Big 10 teams. Chapman has coached at Logansport and Columbia City, Ind., high schools and at Huntington college, Huntington, Ind.

Jerry Lemon is starting his sixth year as head football boss at Bradley high and he competed in a golf tournament last Sunday at Kankakee. He attended the funeral for his mother-in-law at Cuba Saturday. Rodney Richardson, former mentor at Chandlerville and Cuba is starting his second year at Bradley as basketball coach and he served three years at Effingham.

Teddy Printy, new basketball coach at Roodhouse high, starred in basektball at White Hall high, leading the Maroons to the Valley title in 1952 under Coach Howard Berline who he is replacing at Roodhouse. Printy scored 68 points in two games against Chapin and Griggsville during his Senior year and he holds the all-time basketball scoring mark for White Hall high school.

Robert Eudeikis is the new football and track coach at LeRoy high school and he formerly coached at Zion-Benton high school. He is a graduate of Batavia high school and Illinois State Normal University. He will serve as assistant in basketball.

Watseka high school graduated seven football players who are headed for colleges next month. Dick Rhoades will attend Southern Illinois University; Wayne Kuhlman is headed for Murray, Ky., State college while Kim Winkler is going to West Point. His brother, Karl, will attend Dartmouth and Paul Martin will enroll at the University of Tennessee. Tom Ross will attend Arizona U. and Larry Harries will go to Bradley.

Wertz Has Split Personality At Batting Time

BOSTON (AP) Vic Wertz is a split personality with a bat. His hitting averages range from .615 to .244.

Averages?

Yes, the balding 35-year-old Boston left-handed slugger came through with men on base again Thursday despite the fact the club dropped its third straight decision, 11-7, to New York.

Wertz hit a sacrifice fly with two men aboard in the first inning. He cracked a bases-loaded single good for two runs in the fourth.

Wertz has 82 RBI to show for his 92 hits this season in a strong bid for the club's most valuable player rating. Those 82 RBI tie him with Yankee Bill Skowron for the American League runnerup spot behind New York's Roger Maris (92).

Wertz is batting at a fantastic .615 clip with the bases full. He has six singles, two grand slam homers and 21 RBI in 13 at bats.

It drops to a low of .244 when he bats with no one on base—31 safeties in 127 trips. Vic is hitting .373 with two men on (19 in 51) and .281 with one mate aboard (34 in 121).

What goads Wertz to great slugging heights when he sees runners to be driven home?

"Honestly, I don't do a thing differently at the plate—at least consciously," Wertz insists. "I try just as hard to get my base hits with no one on. Yet it always has been this way with me. It sounds funny but I seem to be the most relaxed up there with baserunners.

"And maybe it isn't so strange anyway. With men on base the pitcher can't be cute trying for corners and wind up walking me and maybe forcing in a run. He's got to keep the ball near the plate."

In Hollywood

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —While the movie-makers are busily exploring the darker, wilder shores of love, the biggest problem of Hollywood's TV action series producers is to skirt cautiously romantic entanglements.

Except for the family-type comedy shows, the rarest prop in a TV series is a wedding ring. In televisionland, the incidence of bachelors is considerably at odds with U.S. census statistics. While there is not one married hero in the current crop of action and adventure shows, there is an abundance of widowers.

Wives spell plot-trouble, and even the presence of a steady girl friend is in most cases frowned upon as a drag on free-wheeling plots. On the other hand, it would never do to portray the handsome, brave and broad-shouldered hero as scared of women or—worse—indifferent to feminine charms.

In the old days, when Westerns were for the kiddies, girls were used incidentally and usually had a brother-sister relationship with the hero.

When the adult Western arrived on the home screens, it became permissible to involve the hero emotionally—but with marvelous restraint—with a lady. It was usually a different girl in each episode. Inevitably, after bringing in the handcuffed bad men, the hero headed west alone while the ranch-owner's daughter or the entertainer in the local saloon watched him out of sight, tears in her eyes and loneliness in her heart.

That is still the usual formula, and only here and there have the script-writers managed to get away from it. "Peter Gunn," for one, has kept our hero more or less faithful to one fair lady. In the Westerns there is "Gunsmoke's" Marshal Matt Dillon and Kitty Russell, proprietor of the Long Branch saloon.

When the show started, six seasons back, Kitty—then as now played by Amanda Blake—was just one of the girls in the Long Branch.

"But we received so many letters, particularly from fastidious-women, which said that although they realized the subtety of the relationship between Matt and Kitty, they would enjoy the show more if there were no other men in her life," Miss Blake said.

So, towards the end of the second year, Matt returned to Dodge from a trip and was told by his friend Doc that, during his absence, Kitty had bought the saloon.

"How," asked Matt, "did she ever manage that?"

"She saved her money," replied Doc crisply. The subject was dropped and Kitty was neatly transformed from B-girl to business woman.

At the moment, it looks as if true love is to enter the life of one of the many TV widowers. The producers of "The Rifleman" are hunting for the right girl to creep into the stalwart heart of Lucas McCain. Her name will be Milly but she won't turn up on our TV screens for at least 10 months.

Chuck Connors, who plays McCain, said the decision was taken after quantities of mail, particularly from feminine viewers who thought it was time little Mark McCain felt the influence of a woman.

"After all," said Chuck practically, "Mark has been 2½ years without a mother. And if I do have a girl, it will help set up a whole new series of plot situations."

Arnold Laven, one of the "Rifleman" producers, said, "We'll figure out from the response to that how far we'll let the relationship go—in other words, whether it will be permitted to mature into marriage."

Obviously, this could develop into a rash of cowboy and private eye weddings. There's even a rumor from the "Wanted—Dead or Alive" set that this year they're going to let Steve McQueen kiss a girl.

Politics Steal Limelight From Sports At Olympics

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROME (AP) — The Soviet Union began a subtle drive to replace Avery Brundage as president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) Friday as politics wrested the limelight from athletics arriving for the seventeenth Olympic Games.

Two of America's most influential Olympic officials — Brundage and William Garrand of Los Angeles—apparently split on the issue of what to call Nationalist China.

The executive committee of the powerful IOC held an all-day meeting behind closed doors and refused later to give any details of the discussions.

However, it was learned that efforts were begun to draft Brundage for a third four-year term as IOC president—over Soviet objections—and that the IOC Executive Committee apparently is determined to see that Nationalist China competes under the name of Taiwan.

The Nationalist Chinese insist on the name Republic of China. IOC executives say Taiwan does not represent all of China and thus must carry the banner of its geographical location.

These and other issues are to be argued at the full meeting of the IOC Monday. A formal opening session is scheduled Saturday but likely will be devoted to routine ceremony.

Brundage is reported to be one-of the IOC members favoring Taiwan. Garrand, a member of the IOC, said he was unalterably opposed to it.

"It is known as the Republic of China in the United Nations, I will fight to keep that name," he explained.

The Taiwan delegation said the team would compete in the current games, beginning Aug. 25, regardless. The Nationalist Chinese repeated, however, they planned a strong fight on the matter.

Communist China has refused to compete in the Olympics as long as Taiwan is allowed in the games.

Brundage, a militant champion of amateurism, first was elected IOC president in 1952.

The Chicago hotelman has indicated he's willing to serve another four years, but the Russians are said to be mustering the Iron Curtain satellites and some of the smaller nations in a campaign to elect Constantin Andrianov, Soviet member of the IOC.

Aleksei Romanov, another Soviet member and chairman of the Russian Olympic Committee, was among the 80 athletes and officials who arrived Friday.

He ducked IOC political issues but firmly announced he opposed two points favored by Brundage—curtailment of the size of the games and a damper on nationalism.

"Every country must be given a chance to compete, no matter how small or insignificant its sports," he said. As for team sports and nationalism, how can we prevent a country from wanting to win?"

Carol Sorenson Wins Junior Girls Title

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Wiry Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis., persevered through five days of grueling golf and won the National Junior Girls Championship with a 2-and-1 decision over Sharon Fladoos, Dubuque, Iowa, Friday.

It was a tough battle all the way for the two 17-year-old shotmakers over the 6,272-yard Oaks Country Club course, where par is 39-38—77.

The blonde Wisconsin lass, holder also of the Wisconsin Women's Championship, played one-over-par golf to achieve her triumph. Miss Fladoos had trouble with her chipping and putting in the latter stages of the match and this proved costly as she went four over par.

FIRST FAIR

First successful world's fair held in America was the Centennal eXposition held in Philadelphia, Penna., in 1876 to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Jimmy Walthall, recently named a grid assistant at West Virginia University, gave one of the great individual performances in WVU football history in 1944. He almost singlehandedly led the Mountaineers to a 28-27 victory over Penn State.

KNOCK WOOD—When Murray Olderman, right, took over as president of the Football Writers' Association of America in Chicago, the ubiquitous Abe Saperstein, international professional basketball promoter, made it official by presenting the Newspaper Enterprise Association cartoonist-sports writer with gavel, the traditional symbol.

Today's hand is printed in self-defense. It is known in the trade as "the great unblock" and in one form or another has been making the rounds of bridge groups as long as I can remember.

Lately, I have had a lot of mail asking about it and this should stop those letters for a little while anyway.

Since this is a problem hand, the bidding is unimportant but a grand slam contract is reasonable and the hand just won't make seven no-trump.

Here is the play to make the hand. South wins the opening club lead in dummy and carefully discards a diamond, not one of the low spades. Then he leads a trump to his hand; ruffs a low spade; leads a second trump to his hand; ruffs the queen of spades. Leads to his hand with dummy's last trump. (Two trumps have been used to ruff spades and two have already been led.)

Now South cashes his last trump and the ace of spades and discards dummy's ace and king of diamonds whereupon he has unblocked and his diamonds are all good.

You can now see why South refused to discard a spade. He must ruff two spades in dummy in order to develop the double unblocking situation.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East

You, South, hold: ♠A 2 ♥A Q J 10 5 ♦K 9 8 7 6 4 ♣9 4

What do you do?

A—Open the bidding with one heart. One diamond is a very close second choice, but this is one time where the shorter suit should be bid first.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner responds one spade. What is your rebid?

Issue Ticket After Collision On North Main

Harold E. Willner, Jr., of 1231 Center street, was issued a traffic ticket Friday evening following an accident at the North Main-Independence intersection. Willner was charged with failure to yield the right of way after his auto collided with a car driven by Virgil E. Young of Rock Hill, Mo., about 7:02 p.m.

Young was heading south on Main street and Willner west on Independence. Willner told police officers the sun was in his eyes and he couldn't see.

The Young car had damage to the right front fender and headlight and the Willner car was damaged in the left front fender and bumper.

City police officers assisted at the scene of the accident.

Bluffs Legion Plans Annual Picnic Sept. 17

BLUFFS—Charles Wolford Post, No. 441, American Legion of Bluffs has announced plans for its annual picnic September 17 which will include the crowning of "Mrs. Bluffs of 1960." Mrs. Mary Traw will place the jeweled crown on the new queen.

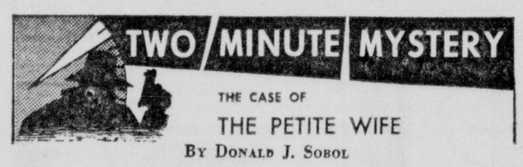
There are various gifts on display at "The Two Lecies" Store which will be presented to the new "Mrs. Bluffs" and her court. These include a beautiful jeweled Tiara purchased by the local Legion Post from Thompson Jewelry Store, a large bouquet of roses from Hofmann Florist, a fur blend sweater from Leslie and Rickard, a shirt from Emporium, jewelry set from S'Squire Gift Shop, and an 8 x 10 picture from Murray Studios in Jacksonville.

There will be jewelry sets given to the five attendants of the queen also.

To cast votes for your favorite married lady to be queen of the Legion Picnic, ask your home town merchants for coupons to vote on. Anyone who is married is eligible to be our queen and for every 50c you spend with the following merchants you receive one vote. A ballot box is in each store: The Two Lecies, Gregory Appliance, Jack Moore Grocery Store, The Brick Cafe, Bridgman's Store, I.G.A. Store, Gamble Store, Allen Lumber Co., Bluffs Hardware Co., Irene's Cafe, Bojaynes Cafe.

Two weeks before the picnic a count of the votes will be held and the six ladies with the most votes will be the finalists.

LISTEN TO WLDS



THE CASE OF THE PETITE WIFE

By Donald J. Sobol

"I'll have to take you down to headquarters, Mr. Logan," said Inspector Winters. "Your car was identified as the one seen speeding away from the corner of Everett and Rose, where the Burton boy was hit this morning."

"Obviously, there's been a mistake," said Logan, a huge man of six feet six inches. "I haven't driven the car in two days."

"Larry Appleson, a playmate of the injured boy, is pretty sure it was your car, and driven by a big man," replied the inspector.

Logan laughed genially. "Now I know there's been an error. The only person who drove the car this morning was my wife. She hardly can be mistaken for a man."

The inspector glanced at Mrs. Logan, a pale blonde, hardly five feet tall.

"I put it to you, inspector," said Logan. "Could you mistake Claire for a man?"

"No," agreed the inspector. "One other thing. The hit-run car made a lot of noise, as if it had muffler trouble."

"Listen for yourself," invited Logan, leading the inspector to the garage.

Taking a set of keys from his pocket, he slipped comfortably behind the wheel, and started the motor without delay. He backed the car onto the street and drove twice around the block.

"The car operated noiselessly," the inspector told Haledjian later. "But even before I discovered it had a new muffler, I knew Logan was lying."

"I put it to you, inspector," said Logan. "Could you mistake Claire for a man?"

HALEDJIAN KNEW TOO. DID YOU?

Although Logan claimed his five foot wife was the only person to drive the car that morning, he was able to step comfortably behind the wheel.

Since he was six and a half feet tall, he would have had to adjust the seat from her position to his if she had really been the last driver.
